Market Rule Changes Send Stocks Up

BUYING WAVE OPENS DAY IN WALL STREET

Leading Issues Gain as Much as $3 as Reserve Board Cuts Margin Requirements.

CONFIDENCE RETURNING

40 Per Cent Margin on Stock Purchases, 50 Per Cent on 'Short' Buying Ordered.

NEW YORK — (AP) — Stocks were swept upward for gains ranging to more than $3 a share in leading issues at the opening of the market today as changes in credit restrictions by the federal reserve board in margin trading, announced yesterday in Washington, touched off a heavy wave of buying.

The reaction of the market was what Washington officials had hoped it would be—an encouragement to buying and a barrier to "short" selling.

Margin Reduced.

The new regulations, effective Monday, cut from 55 to 40 per cent the amount of cash traders must put up for the purchase of stocks, and will require a 50 per cent margin on "short" sales.

The new requirement on short selling is the first ever imposed by the federal reserve board. The only rule heretofore has been one by the stock exchange requiring a 10-point margin.

The board regulation was drafted in co-operation with the securities exchange commission after reserve system legal experts reported it would not transcend authority granted under the federal reserve law.

Initial reaction in Wall Street was favorable to the cut in margins on the buying side, but the requirements on short sales came as a surprise to some traders.

The consensus appeared to be that the reserve board's dual action would do much to restore confidence in a market where $25,000,000,000 in securities values have been washed away recently under heavy waves of selling.

Until the board acted last night, financial and business demands for easing margin requirements on the buying side had been growing steadily more insistent.

Here's Explanation of 'Short' Selling.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Short selling, on which the federal reserve board has imposed new margin requirements, is selling in anticipation of a drop in securities values

If a stock is selling for $50, for instance, a trader may sell some shares at that price in the expectation the price will drop before the contracted date of delivery. In brokerage practice, he need not have the stock in his possession at the time of the sale.

If the stock fell to $40 before he had to deliver it, he could buy at that price and make a $10 a share profit.

If, on the other hand, the stock went up to $60, he would lose $10 a share

HUNT MAN, BOY LOST 6 DAYS

Idaho Mountaineers Beat Brush For Publisher, Son, 10.

STANLEY, Idaho—(AP)—Mountain folk, wise in the treachery of wilderness trails, beat through the nation's greatest wilderness area today in search of an Idaho newspaper publisher and his 1-year-old son, missing six days on a hunting trip.

Somewhere in Challis National Forest area they hope to locate R. L. Cornwell of Jerome, Idaho, and his son, Dean.

"More'n likely," suggested an old-timer, "they wandered off on one of them game trails.

"But with their guns and packs they shouldn't be too bad off. There's thousands of deer, elk and other animals they can eat. There's plenty of water."

BOY SEXTUPLETS

Born in India, All Doing Well, British Officer Reports.

LONDON—(U.P.)—The birth of sextuplets, all boys, to an Indian woman on the northwest frontier, was reported in a letter received by Major General E. D. Giles, from Lieut. Dur Khan, an officer of a British regiment in India.

Lieut Khan wrote that his cousin's wife had given birth to the boys all of whom are doing well.

Price of Meat Drops Slowly, Survey Shows

Pork and Ham Cheaper, But Steaks Stay Near September Levels.

Meat prices, glory be, are going down.

Perhaps not very fast, but the decline is at least perceptible.

That was established today by a check of Mansfield retail meat dealers, in which current prices were compared with prices of a month ago.

At that time—what housewife doesn't know it?—pork chops, ham, sirloin and tenderloin steaks were near the level of war days.

But now—glory be, again—they're lower.

The same situation also applies in other parts of the country the United Press reported today, after a survey in 29 cities. The United Press also reported that there will probably be a well-defined drop in meat prices on all grades and kinds by Jan. 1.

Pork, Ham Down.

A check of Mansfield markets showed that you could buy pork chops for from 30 to 38 cents a pound. A month ago, they cost anywhere from 35 to 45 cents. There's been a five-cent drop in the price of ham, too, with the prevailing price around 30 cents a pound now as compared to 35 a month ago.

If you prefer steak to pork and ham, you won't find such a sharp reduction. But prices of sirloin and tenderloin were down perhaps a couple of cents, and are expected to drop even more shortly. A good porterhouse is still pretty expensive—up around 60 to 65 cents a pound. But it's even more in Madison, Wis., the United Press reported, where quotations were 95 cents a pound.

What's causing the reduction? Mansfield dealers agreed with packers, who said that a drop in wholesale commodity prices, together with a reduction on packing house costs was responsible. Packers pass the reduction on to the butcher, and the butcher passes it on to you, Mrs. Mansfield.

Goodman, who works near Upper Sandusky, is seen above being congratulated by Harold Oatney, 29, of Pleasantville, winner of the shock corn husking crown. The contest was observed by a crowd of 25,000. Winners will enter the national championship to be held next week at Marshall, Mo.

WILL FORGED BY MRS. HAHN, JURORS TOLD

Check, Paper Giving Power of Attorney Also False, Says Handwriting Expert.

POISON FOUND IN PURSE

Chemist, Testifying In Trial For Murder, Reports on Test of Lint Scrapings.

CINCINNATI —(AP)— A handwriting expert's testimony that Anna Marie Hahn forged the name of Jacob Wagner on three documents, including his purported will, was added today to the state's evidence in her murder trial.

The blond 31-year-old mother, accused by the prosecution of "mass murders" for profit, is being tried for the poison death of Wagner, 78, a retired gardener

Held Author of Will.

Albert D. Osborn of New York, engaged by the state to identify documents in the case, testified at a night session that Mrs. Hahn was the author of a scrawled handwriting which, the state asserted, she presented as Wagner's "last will and testament," leaving to her all his modest fortune

Osborn also declared the signature on an order giving Mrs. Hahn power of attorney for Wagner was a "poor imitation" and that a check bearing Wagner's name in reality was made out by Mrs. Hahn. The defense has admitted that the defendant forged a check for $1,000 several hours after Wagner died June 3.

Previously Dr. Willard Machle, a chemist, testified lining of a handbag taken from Mrs Hahn when she was arrested Aug. 11 contained the same type of metallic poison found in Wagner's body.

Dr. Machle, over defense objection, stated he found scrapings of lint from the bag were 35 per cent poison.

Hauptmann Trial Expert.

Osborn, describing himself as the expert in the Bruno Richard Hauptmann trial in the Lindberg kidnap-murder case, identified also Mrs. Hahn's letters written to Albert J. Palmer, retired watchman whose death the state listed among three others as collateral evidence.

The German-born woman, also indicted for murder in the death of elderly George Gsellman, was identified as the author of a note found in Gsellman's attic room.

CUBS GET TONY

Wrigley Signs Up Lazzeri as Player and Coach.

CHICAGO—(U.P.)—Tony Lazzeri, formerly of the New York Yankees, today signed a one-year contract as "player-coach" for the Chicago Cubs.

Phil Wrigley, owner of the Cubs, announced the "Poosh-'em-up Tony" will be utility infielder.

Wrigley refused comment on reports that Lazzeri eventually would succeed Charlie Grimm as manager. Grimm has a one-year contract.

"I am very happy to be with the Cubs," Lazzeri smiled

Terms of the deal were not disclosed.

DEALERS, UNION CONFER AS FUEL IS 'DOLED OUT'

Homes With Empty Bins Get Coal Under Watchful Eyes of Pickets; Drivers' 3-Point Demand Includes Closed Shop, 'Check-off' System.

Coal Strike at a Glance

PEACE parley scheduled for 2:30 p.m. today between union leaders and retail dealers at the Hotel Southern.

COAL being "doled out" to homes where supply is gone, upon determination of that condition by union pickets.

SUPPORT of striking teamsters union voted by Richland County Industrial council, new CIO central unit.

COURT action in case of coal dealer charged with assault and battery continued on request of both sides.

CITY officials withdrew from situation after arranging opening negotiations which resulted in meeting yesterday between dealers and unionists.

* * * * *

While a settlement of Mansfield's two-day-old coal strike was being sought this afternoon, the precious fuel was being "doled out" only to homes with exhausted bins, under the watchful eyes of union pickets.

A meeting of retail dealers with union officials was arranged for late today when the drivers' three-point demand—closed shop, increased wages and better working conditions, the latter including the "check-off" system—was to be considered for the first time.

City officials withdrew from the controversy late yesterday after they had arranged for a meeting of the two groups. Meanwhile the new CIO council, the Richland County Industrial council, voted to give the support of its 2,200 members to the International Brotherhood of Chauffeurs, Teamsters, Stablemen and Helpers, local No. 40, which is conducting the strike.

Today's meeting was called by the three-man committee, representing the retail coal dealers and follows a short session yesterday when the union presented its demands.

Represent Dealers.

Representing the coal dealers is Frank A. Voegele, manager of the Voegele Brothers company; Melvin H. Harrah of the H. and H. Coal company, and Richard O. Davies, secretary and general manager of the Kallmerten and Baer Coal company.

The coal dealers' committee, in a statement today, said that the union demands were "entirely without reason." They pointed out that in view of the rising prices of coal at the mine and an increase of freight rates that is to be effective Nov. 1, that the retail price of coal would

LABOR PARLEY COLLAPSE SEEN

'No Surrender' Attitudes of Both CIO, A. F. of L. to Prolong 'Recess.'

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Attitudes of "no surrender" by both factions in organized labor's civil war created a widespread belief today that the week's recess of the peace conference might last indefinitely.

An American Federation of Labor statement last night said.

"We have not received any help from the representatives of the Committee for Industrial Organization. Unless there is a change in their attitude . . . it is doubtful if any progress can be made toward peace."

The federation's peace committee had just heard its own peace terms rejected by the CIO delegates in equally strong language. Philip Murray, CIO peace committee chairman, said the A. F. of L. offer would mean "abject surrender" and was wholly unacceptable.

The CIO made the first peace proposal Tuesday. In brief, it called for the CIO to fly the A. F. of L. flag but to remain virtually an independent department.

The A. F. of L. would have none of that. The federation's peace committee proposed that John L. Lewis' unions dissolve the CIO and march back into the A. F. of L. to fight for their principles at federation conventions.

The federation charged that Murray "issued a public statement

Eyston Betters World Record But It Fails to Count.

BONNEVILLE SALT FLATS, Utah—(AP)—Capt George E. T. Eyston roared down this saline straightaway at a 309-mile an hour pace today, but mechanical trouble forced him to cancel an official assault on the world land speed record of 301.1292 m.p.h.

Eyston's 24-cylinder, streamlined monster automobile frayed a tire while passing through the measured mile, forcing him to "cut out" the motors.

CAR KILLS BOY

Chased In Game, Child Runs Into Path of Car.

ASHLAND — Richard Edwin Kampzer, 8, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Kampzer, 503 Samaritan avenue, was fatally injured last night when struck by an automobile driven by Robert Schreffler, 22, R. D. 1 Ashland.

Schreffler told police he was driving down King road when the boy ran in front of his car. Mrs. Kampzer said her son had been playing in a vacant lot with other children and was being chased by other boys in a game when he ran into the street.

The accident occurred at 7:30 p. m. Richard was rushed to Samaritan hospital where he died at 1 a. m. today of a skull fracture. Police Chief Herman D. Fetzer said Schreffler would not be held.

Surviving besides the parents are three brothers, Kenneth, 20, Lowel, 16, Reginald, 6, a sister Ruth, 11, and two grandmothers, Mrs. Josephine Sealer of Jeromesville and Mrs. Sophia Kampzer of Ashland.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete today.

On the Campaign Front---

HUNTER REPLIES TO REPUBLICANS

'My Platform Is Based Upon My Personal Record,' He Says at Prospect Rally.

Discussing a party platform for the first time last night, Claude M. Hunter, Democratic candidate for mayor, outlined a program "based on personalities rather than promises and issues" in a talk at a rally at Prospect school.

In his declaration, which followed a request made several days ago by Republican speakers that he make his plans public, Hunter said "My platform is based upon personal record; it is represented by the Democratic ticket chosen at the primary—men of ability and training."

"These men are taxpayers, and do you imagine that a taxpayer isn't interested in where his tax money goes?" he asked. "Do you think he isn't going to be a little bit selfish in seeing to it that the taxpayers get dollar-for-dollar value. That's my statement on economy."

"Every man on the ticket is a daddy—interested in schools, the uplifting of the city's youth and the promotion of a better parks system to afford healthful recreation. Besides, these men are all church members, and isn't it fair to suppose that they stand for the good life and better living conditions? What more could we have in a platform?

"I am not making a lot of empty promises—just running my campaign on merit, honor and integrity," he said. "I don't know whether that will please the Republican orators, but anyway, that's my platform and it comes right from my heart.

"I hope I can look you as squarely in the face at the end of my term, if elected, as I do now," he added, "and, if elected, I'm going to give you the best I have in me."

Hubby Eats Dog's Meal

WEST ORANGE, N. J.—(U.P.)—The board of health calmed the fears of a housewife today, who called for help after giving her husband their dog's breakfast.

"I gave our dog chopped meat, which I was going to make into patties for my husband," she exclaimed, "and gave my husband patties made of canned dog food." Told that no harm had been done, she was relieved, and said that neither her husband nor the dog seemed to have noticed the error.

NO 'ELIXIR' HERE

Dr. Rehder Finds None Sold In Richland County Area.

Mansfield can be reasonably sure than none of the deadly "elixir of death" is in the city, according to Dr. R. C. Rehder, city health commissioner.

Dr. Rehder said today that he had checked with the district agent through which the mixture has been sold, and found none had been sold in Richland county.

The "elixir of death," which is a solution of sulfanilamide and diethylene glycol is being sought all over the United States after having caused 46 deaths in the nation, according to government officials. Sulfanilamide alone is being used with great success in the treatment of meningitis and streptococcic infections. The glycol is the poison element, medical authorities say.

Although the concrete on Marion avenue was finished yesterday, it will remain closed until the asphalt work is done, which will be about two weeks.

TWO ESCAPE AS ENGINE HITS CAR

Mansfielder's Car Damaged By Switching Locomotive.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Andree, 351 Ohio street, escaped uninjured last night when a switch engine at the North Main street crossing of the B. and O. railroad struck their car and badly damaged the front of it.

Andree told police that he was driving south on North Main street and that the engine was standing still just off the crossing when he approached. He said that as he drove onto the track, the engine started and struck the front end of his car, damaging the fender, wheel, radiator and engine.

Woman Defies Coal Pickets And Law—It Lands Her In Jail

A woman who tried to take it upon herself to unload a ton of coal—all dressed up in a fur coat—over the protests of strike pickets yesterday afternoon at the rear of 18 South Main street, ran afoul of the law and faced a charge of intoxication and disorderly conduct in municipal court this morning.

She is Mrs. Ra Vonna Hiler, Cook road, pleaded guilty to the intoxication charge but protested the disorderly conduct charge in the affidavit, which was signed by Officer Harry Copper.

Copper and E. C. Fuller, identification officer, testified that the woman was standing beside a coal truck, surrounded by a crowd of persons, when they arrived in answer to a call that a woman was creating a disturbance, and that she was using vulgar and profane language.

Her husband, Andrew Hiler, told the court, that his wife had "had a few drinks," and that when he complied with the pickets' request not to unload the coal until the strike was settled, his wife decided to do the unloading herself.

When the officers approached and told her who they were, according to Copper and Fuller, she told them in no uncertain terms that this was a free country, and "landed" on Copper, striking him and tearing one side of his coat to shreds

The officers took her, "fighting all the way," they said, to city jail while her husband took the coal to his home. Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch found her guilty and fined her $25 and costs. He stipulated that if she would pay for the damage to the officer's clothing, that amount would be suspended from her fine.

WESTERN RESERVE LINE TO AVERAGE 180 POUNDS FOR MANSFIELD MELEE

A collection of former high school stars from Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia will provide the opposition for Coach Russ Murphy's once-defeated Mansfield Tygers at Stadium field at 2:30 p. m. Saturday.

The Western Reserve Frosh team that Freshman Coach Gene Myslenski, who captained the undefeated Red Cats' varsity last fall, will pit against the Tygers will not only pack more experience but considerable more poundage, especially in the line.

The visitors' forwards will average 180 pounds, with the backfield hitting around 165 per man. The Mansfield line will be outweighed by approximately 10 pounds to the man.

Among the outstanding members of the future Western Reserve varsity team is Kenneth Fryer of Wellsburg, W. Va., a halfback. Fryer was considered as one of the outstanding ball hawks in West Virginia scholastic circles last fall.

Fryer will be paired at the halfbacks with John Ries, "Jumping Joe" Williams' successor on the Barberton high school club. Bob Kresja of Shaker Heights will be at quarterback, with Steve Belichick, "spark plug" of the great Struthers eleven of last fall at fullback.

The line is the pride of "Big Bill" Ewards, Western Reserve coach. He regards the freshmen forwards as the best line prospects to come to the Cleveland college since the start of his coaching regime.

Edwards is reported to be particularly impressed with his two regular freshmen tackles, Louis Curra of Smithton, Pa., and Andy Wyhowanex of Tiltonville, who tip the scales at 190 pound apiece.

The flankmen are William Sike of Sharpsville, Pa., and Gene Isaac of Struthers, both outstanding pass receivers. Ed Gadzinski of Cleveland East and Jack Clark, a prominent member of last year's Martins Ferry team, are the guards. Henry Anjeska of Elizabeth, Pa., is the center. Gadzinski, who weighs 170 pounds, is the lightest lineman.

Other members of the freshman squad who will probably see service in the Mansfield game are Tom Bogden of Struthers, George Wancata of Garfield Heights, Julius Pickoff of Taylor, Tex., Bill Ferguson of Willoughby, John Giantonio of Cleveland East, Jim Kersh of Warren and Richard Markell of Kirtland.

Expecting more trouble from the freshmen than the Tygers encountered in either the Massillon or Sandusky games, Coach Murphy is working his charges hard this week in preparation for the invasion.

All of the members of the Tyger team survived the Shelby game in good shape, and no serious injuries are counted among the regulars.

ALUMNI, STUDENTS MAKE LIFE TOUGH FOR "ROSIE"

Believe Aiken Could Have Done Better Than Former Ashland High School Coach.

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor.

BITS OF THIS 'N' THAT IN SPORTS: The alumni and student body are making life miserable for "Rosie" Starn, whose Kent State gridsters are not winning. They seem to think that Jimmy Aiken, now winning at Akron U., could have done better. Starn was chosen over Aiken, you know. . . . The Sandusky team which whipped Lorain, 7-6, last week, was weaker than the club that tripped Mansfield. Al Gant and Bob Zielske were mussed up so badly by the Tygers they were unable to play against Lorain. . . . If Ohio Wesleyan drops out of the Buckeye conference, Toledo will replace the Bishops in all probability.

Floyd Stahl has been a member of the Ohio State coaching staff seven years, but has seen the Bucks in action only five times. He does the scouting for Mr. Schmidt. . . . It must have been muddy when Galion upset Mt. Vernon, Galion's Capt. Ramsey weighed 144 pounds at the start of the game, and, plastered with a coat of mud, he tipped the scales at 170 at the finish.

Bill Edwards, Western Reserve's brilliant coach, is only 32. . . . Unless the movie action pictures of Ohio State's game against Southern California lie, Ambie Schindler's knee hit the ground several times in his many runs without any argument from the officials.

* * *

GALION claims Mt. Vernon did not make a first down in their recent meeting, and the Jacket followers claim they did. Somebody's wrong. . . . They're comparing Clinton Frank, Yale's brilliant halfback, with Jim Thorpe, but not the old-timers, who can't be convinced that the Indian wasn't "tops." . . . C. C. N. Y.'s athletic board believes it has solved this ticket price plus tax irritation for all time. Tickets for a recent game were advertised at 91 cents plus 10 cents tax but were sold at a reduced price of $1.

GET READY FOR EUCLID

Merchants Seek Revenge In Game Scheduled Here Sunday.

The Mansfield Merchants, fresh from an impressive 12 to 0 victory over the touted Kent Collegiates, began preparations today to meet the powerful Euclid, O., Kiwanis grid machine Sunday at League park.

Coach Max Miller's athletics will not only be seeking another triumph, but will be out to square an old account with the invaders.

Last season after the Mansfield club had registered eight consecutive victories, the Kiwanis team battled it to a scoreless tie, the only blemish on the Merchants' record.

The injury jinx again hit Miller's club last Sunday when Vern Heiser, passing ace, suffered a torn cartilage and will not be in action Sunday.

Johnny Burnison, Galion high school coach, who romped 60 yards for the Merchant's initial score in the Kent tilt, is expected to return for Sunday's battle.

The addition of Burnison adds considerable punch to the Merchants' attack. Ike Fetter, who played only a few minutes last Sunday will be back at his old post Sunday. He suffered a broken nose two weeks ago.

Unbeaten Rams Seek Third Mid-State Victory Tonight

Heavily Favored In Grid Game With Fredericktown Under Lights.

THE fast-stepping Rams of Madison high school won their first four games of the season without a great deal of exertion.

And tonight they are expected to hang up another victory when they collide with Fredericktown in their third Mid-State league melee of the season under the Madison lights at 8 o'clock.

Suffers Three Losses.

Fredericktown has already dropped decisions to Mt. Gilead, Bellville and Loudonville, but the team has shown constant improvement, and it may provide the Rams with more trouble than expected.

However, Madison remains a heavy favorite to turn back the Freddies, who have never beaten the Rams on the gridiron.

Coach Al Fendrick will continue his experiments in tonight's game by using two linemen in the backfield. Doug De Nero, who showed up well against Butler, will start at a halfback. De Nero started the season at end.

Joe Miller, a center, will continue at fullback for further trial. Miller has not displayed the drive that Fendrick expected when he placed him in the backfield, but he is developing rapidly.

Play League Tilt Today.

One Mid-State league game was played this afternoon. Butler played at Loudonville in this game. In a league game scheduled Friday, Mt. Gilead invades Danville. Ashley plays at Bellville in a non-league affair Friday afternoon.

SHELBY-MARION GAME LOOMS AS A TOSS-UP

TWO N. C. O. conference games are on schedule this weekend, but the outcome of only one appears questionable.

The toss-up game brings Marion and Shelby together on the Whippets' field Saturday afternoon. Prior to the opening of the season, the Presidents stacked up as one of the strongest clubs in the circuit, but they have failed to live up to expectations.

Shelby, meanwhile, has developed, and it turned in its finest performance of the season Saturday when it scored three times against the Mansfield Tygers.

With Joe Miller doing the throwing, the Whippets present a dangerous aerial attack, and, win or lose, it will cause the future Shelby foes trouble.

The only common foes the two teams have met is Ashland, and both clubs battled the A's to tie scores.

In the only other conference game on schedule this week, Ashland travels to Mt. Vernon Friday night, and the Jackets are favored to come back after their surprise whipping in Galion.

Galion, the conference leader, is host to Rossford in a Friday night game. Bucyrus appeared in a non-league affair at Norwalk today.

LOPEZ DEFEATS OLSON

NEW YORK—Vincent Lopez, 220, Los Angeles, defeated Cliff Olson, 216, Minneapolis, (20.12), (Olson unable to continue).

Wants Victory Over Michigan

CHICAGO—(AP)—There will be no championship glitter connected with the battle, but Bob Zuppke still has a special yearning for an Illinois triumph over Michigan Saturday.

For Michigan is the only Big Ten rival holding a victory margin over Zuppke-coached bands of fighting Illini. Since 1919 when Michigan ended its long absence from the conference and met Illinois under Zuppke for the first time, the Wolverines have won nine out of 17 battles. A victory Saturday would square the Michigan account for the master strategist in his silver jubilee year at Illinois.

Zuppke has an edge over seven Big Ten teams, while the other series, with Ohio State, is all even.

Golf Pros Want Crack At "Mysterious Monty"

NASHVILLE, Tenn.—(AP)—Horton Smith says the country's top-notch golf pros are eager for a crack at the imposing links reputation of John Montague, "for most any kind of stakes." Four of the soundest strokers in the money game—Smith, Harry Cooper, Jimmy Thamson and Lawson Little—want "Mysterious Monty" to try his shots against the cash-and-carry corps.

Smith, speaking for the foursome after an exhibition round at a Nashville course, said today the pros generally resent the fact Montague has been widely hailed as a super-golfer.

Sonny Meder Sets New League Mark

Rolls Out Games of 258, 212 and 258 for a 728 Total to Break Old Mark Held by Jack Applan In City Class A Circuit.

CLARENCE (SONNY) MEDER of the Miller Oldsmobiles set a record-breaking pace for City Class A league bowlers at the Meder alleys last night.

Compiling a torrid 728 total, young Meder established a new season record in the premier Mansfield circuit. The former record of 704 was set by Jack Applan of the Roma Lunch several weeks ago.

In turning out the fine count, Meder started and finished with identical scores of 258. He shot a middle game of 212 as he led the Oldsmobiles to a high 2905 total, which was good for a pair of victories over the Liederkranz club.

Earl Blackburn started with a 231 and finished with a 244 to roll out a 656 for the Leiderkranz, which spilled 2767 uprights.

The Meder Recreation club pounded out a 2872 to take two tilts from the Lumbermens Mutuals, who came through with a 2867. Ev Schaus led the Meder team with a 603, while Shepherd, who sported a middle game of 233, had a 646 for the Mutuals.

In the other match, the Metcalf Pure Oils shot a 2767 to take two games from the Roma Lunch, which piled up a 2745. Clyde Ritter of the Luncheş came through with a 258 in his last game to reach the 639 figures.

Standings of the league have not been provided by the secretary.

Counterfeiters Beat Races to Tune of $793.

LAUREL, Md.— (U.P.)— The Maryland state fair association, operators of the Laurel race track, was mulcted out of $793.80 last Monday in a devious scheme to beat the races, it was revealed here today. The scheme was successfully carried out by counterfeiters who purchased $2 straight tickets on each of the eight entries in the fourth race and quickly printed a batch of duplicates. After the race 42 tickets were cashed on Challenge Cup, the "sure thing" winner at $18.90 straight.

It is believed the counterfeiting was done in an automobile truck inside the track.

Lazzeri-Cub Mystery To Be Solved Today

CHICAGO—(AP)—Owner Phil K. Wrigley of the Chicago Cubs and Tony Lazzeri, recently of the World Champion New York Yankees, had a date today to solve one of the last of major league baseball's big mysteries.

The mystery was what part, if any, Lazzeri, an American league stalwart for 12 seasons, will play in Wrigley's campaign to bring the National league championship back to Chicago.

Before the last world series, Lazzeri hinted that the 1937 season would probably be his last as an active player, provided a big league managing job turned up. After the series, Wrigley arranged with the Yankee management for Tony's release, saying he felt that an ambitious baseball man of the Lazzeri type would be a big help in the Cub organization. But, he also reiterated that Charlie Grimm, pilot of the club since midseason of 1932, would continue as the Cub's manager.

Beyond saying that he thought he wanted Lazzeri, Wrigley has given no hint of his plans.

Ashland Gridster Nominated For "Who's Who" Book

THE old theory "all brawn and no brains" doesn't apply to Ashland College's star football and track man, Ward Legg. Through his scholastic record and his athletic ability, Legg is one of six Ashland students nominated for "Who's Who Among Students In American Colleges and Universities."

• • •

Dick Olin, former Mansfield high school grid star, seems to be doing a bit of all right for himself at the Kenyon college. In last week's tilt against Alfred University, Olin intercepted an Alfred pass and raced 95 yards to score the opening touchdown. However, Kenyon lost 13-6.

Although Ohio Northern's Polar Bears haven't been beaten this season, they've caused a lot of wear and tear on the trouser seat of Coach Harris Lamb. The trouble is that in the three games they've won, they've done so by such narrow margins that they've kept him sliding up and down the bench at a terrific rate. In addition, they've played two ties, which added to the strain.

Here's the record: Last week the Polar Bears beat Bowling Green by a 9-7 score. They won from Ashland, 19-6, the most comfortable margin of the year, right after they'd nosed out Findlay in the opener, 6-2. The two ties have been a 0-0 encounter with Denison and 6-6 deadlock with Heidelberg.

Wonder what this week's game with Capital will do to the Lamb trousers?

• • •

Coach Don Peden's Ohio University Bobcats will have to pull out every trick in their bag when they meet Marshall's powerhouse eleven Saturday at Huntington, W. Va. The Bobcats hope to retain at least a share of the Buckeye title. Marshall will outweigh Peden's team. To overcome this handicap, he is polishing up the Ohio aerial attack.

NAMED BASKETBALL COACH

ADA, O.—(U.P.)—C. B. Schuchardt, assistant football coach at Ohio Northern university, today was named head basketball coach. Schuchardt succeeds Harris Lamb. Lamb will become director of intramural sports.

RAMS SIGN FULLBACK

STOCK PRICES SKYROCKET IN EARLY TRADING

Respond to News of Reduction In Buying Margins; Up 6 Points or More.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Stocks skyrocketed in today's market following overnight news buying margins had been reduced and those on short selling boosted.

Several leaders were late in opening as floor members attempted to co-ordinate bids and offers. Gains near the second hour ran to 6 or more points with the ticker tape several minutes behind from the start.

U. S. Steel on an initial transfer of 15,000 shares was up 4¼ points. It required about 20 minutes to make this deal. Chrysler on a block of 10,000 was ahead 5¼.

Short covering, in addition to quick-turn trading demand, accounted partly for the sharp upsurge, brokers said.

Bonds were higher and most commodities leaned forward. Foreign securities markets exhibited strength.

Items of interest marketwise included:

Last week's freight car loadings, on the basis of figures thus far coming to hand, were estimated to have suffered an unseasonal dip to around 780,000, apparently reflecting a further reduction in industrial output. Some western grain carriers, at the same time, made comparatively good showings.

An appreciable export balance for this country in 1937 was seen as more than probable in view of the commerce department's statement disclosing foreign shipments for September exceeded general imports by more than $63,000,000.

THEATER

Press Agents' Chatter—Greta Garbo must have a press agent with a "rumor complex." Every time one of her pictures is about to be released, there is a flock of rumors let loose, and some of the wise ones think the Stokowski-Garbo romance is just another. Anyway, it's considered good publicity and won't hurt her new picture "Conquest" a bit. . . . When Sonja Heine wears a peasant's costume in "Hot and Happy," few spectators will guess that it is 300 years old, having been a bridal dress in the Heine clan for three generations, according to the little star's press agent. . . . The balmiest story, however, is from the Bing Crosby lot, where Cameraman Charles Lang insists that Mary Carlisle get only six hours sleep a night—because too much sleep makes the eyes puffy. System supposed to be used on Dietrich. . . . But then press agents must live. . . .

* * *

Makes Good on Own.

Joe E. Brown's leading lady in his new comedy is Florence Rice, daughter of the popular sports writer, Grantland Rice. It is no longer necessary, however, to identify her thus, for she is making good on her own. She has been playing in "quickies" until the last year, and now she is seen in the more important films. Last week she appeared here in support of William Powell and Myrna Loy. In the Brown picture, she is the sweetheart of the small town editor who goes in for sleuthing in an airplane. Joe in pursuit of perfume smugglers, in a not too reliable plane, provides a highlight of comedy. "Riding on Air" is the Madison offering the remainder of the week.

* * *

At Ease In Role.

Pat O'Brien should feel perfectly at home in his role of newspaper editor in "Back In Circulation," the Ohio theater's offering for the last three days of the week. For he played two roles on the stage and screen in the greatest newspaper play of them all—"Front Page." O'Brien played the hard boiled editor in the stage version, appearing in Cleveland at one time; and later played Hildy Johnson, the classic portrayal of a reporter, in the screen version. In his new picture, he is not quite so "tough," but a little more romantic. But then he has Joan Blondell to make him romantic. Margaret Lindsay is the woman whose husband is killed and her past as a night club entertainer brought to the front pages.

* * *

"Bad Girl" Withers.

Jane Withers in "Angel's Holiday" will attract her fans to the Ritz Friday and Saturday. The "tough kid" of the movies has a typical role in her latest picture. She excells in sending in fake alarms to the police and otherwise bedeviling them. So that when she decides to turn sleuth and attempts to report a real kidnaping to police they refuse to believe her or offer help. Robert Kent, Sally Blane and the eccentric Joan Davis, are in the cast. The regular week-end Western at the Ritz brings Tex Ritter, one of the singing cow hands in "Sing, Cowboy, Sing."

* * *

Racketeering Opportunists.

"Young Dynamite," Majestic presentation for the last two days of the week, is based on a story by Peter B. Kyne and follows the action of officers of the state police force and federal agents who close in on a band of racketeers whose stock in trade is weighing lead with gold, a brand of racketeering which has flourished since the government put an embargo on private holdings of gold. That public and private losses from this trickery is costing the government and private concerns millions of dollars, is established in the story. A youthful cast with Frankie Darro, Charlotte Henry and Kane Richmond carries out the action. The second feature is a western, "Boots of Destiny," with Ken Maynard.

BOSTON WOOL

BOSTON—(AP)—(U. S. Dept. of Agr.)—Trade was slow in the wool market yesterday and quotations showed an easing tendency. Graded French combing fine territory wools were offered in sizable amounts at 83 to 85 cents, scoured basis. Good French combing lengths fine territory wools in original bags were under 80 cents. Good 12-months Texas wools were reported available at 75-78 cents although some houses were unwilling to consider bids in this range.

GETS LIFE TERM

Miner Sentenced In Killing Of Southern Ohio Cripple.

STEUBENVILLE —(U.P.)— Mike Zelick, 55, Jug Run miner, has been sentenced to life imprisonment in the Ohio penitentiary for the murder of John Masor, 57, crippled ex-miner.

Masor was shot to death the night of May 25 in his one-room home and then robbed of a money pouch containing $187. The money later was recovered.

Keep an extra supply of powder puffs on hand. Powder cannot be spread on as easily with a puff that is too soiled.

Prince Held

—Central Press Photo.

The playboy-grandson of the last reigning king of Hawaii, Prince David Kawananakoa, 32, was held in jail in Honolulu while police investigated the mysterious death of a beautiful part-Hawaiian girl in fashionable Waikiki. The girl, Arvilla Kinslea, 21, was found slashed to death after a party in a Waikiki apartment. The prince admitted he had been drinking at the party but said he had "no remembrance" of events which led up to the girl's death.

ANNUAL POLICE BALL SET FOR NOV. 8—EXPECT CROWD OF 3,000

More than 3,000 persons are expected to attend the fourth annual police ball which will be held Nov. 8 at the Coliseum, the Mansfield Police Recreation club, sponsors of the event, said today.

Nearly 4,000 tickets are in the hands of officers who predict "a sellout." Last year's dance attracted a crowd of 3,500.

Clyde Trask and his orchestra, heard regularly over station WLW, Cincinnati, and the Mutual Broadcasting system, will play for dancing. Trask and his band first played here two weeks ago.

Police also are arranging a floor show of several acts to be given during the intermission.

Members of the recreation club said that proceeds of the dance will be used for bettering the department. Equipment for the newly created identification department and ammunition for target practice will be purchased with some of the money.

Members in charge of the police ball are Chief Meade K. Bates, Lieut. Paul Whipp, Lieut. C. J. Kalstein, and Patrolmen Eugene Hartnett and Howard Schuck.

BOY, 16, HELD IN REFORMATORY

Admits Auto Thefts, Committed Pending Disposition of Case.

Admitting the theft of two automobiles and quantities of cigarettes, candy, and gum in the past week, Charles Hofius, of Lima, was committed to the Mansfield reformatory yesterday by Judge C. J. Anderson in juvenile court.

Although too young to be sent to the reformatory under sentence, the youth was placed in the institution until further disposition is made of his case, Judge Anderson said.

Young Hofius, who escaped with two other boys from the Juvenile Research bureau at Columbus a week ago, was riding in an expensive car which he confessed stealing at Gary, Ind., when picked up by police Monday.

PICTURES LIFE OF CHILDREN IN BROKEN HOMES

Author Takes Up Timely Topic In Latest Addition to Library Fiction.

E. E. M. De La Pasture deals with a timely subject in "Nothing Is Safe" which is on this week's list of fiction at the Mansfield Public library. She uses as her subjects two children whose parents are divorced and remarried. Julia and Terry Gray are shuttled back and forth between two homes, sent hither and yon during their summer holidays, because neither Petah, Mr. Gray's new wife, nor Uncle Tom, Mrs. Gray's new husband, can get along with the children. The revelation of a child's thoughts under these circumstances, is made truly fascinating.

"Song of the World" by Jean Giona is a novel of primitive people—peasants in France. The author intended this to be a timeless novel of the earth and human life, and he has succeeded. Reading his discriptions one has a new sense of power and vigor in nature and in man.

In "Barren Metal," Naomi Jacobs has again written of a Jewish family in England. This is the story of Meyer Pardo, a London tailor; his wife, Rachel, and two sons, David and Isaac.

Other Fiction.

Four other volumes round out the fiction list. They are "Today Is Forever" by Herdman; "Brave Years," by Heyliger; "Storm Girl"; and "Crime of Violence" by King.

The second book by the Abbe children, "Of All Places," tells of their recent adventures in the United States, chiefly those that happened while they were living in Hollywood. Their definition of "spoiled" children as being those that "stay up until 10 o'clock, go to a movie every day, and whine," indicates that strict discipline is maintained in the Abbe family, regardless of their fame. The book abounds with amusing anecdotes and clever sketches of personalities.

Three new books deal with the present world crises. "Struggle For the Pacific," by Gregory Bienstock, presents in detail the history of the rivalries in the Far East. "The Far East Comes Nearer," by Hessell Tittman, brings the story of Asia "new deal" completely up to date. "Zero Hour" by Richard Freund explains the policies of the World Powers, showing how the situation in Spain is tied up with that in the far East.

Other non-fiction this week is: "Mind of Man" by Bromberg; "Power to Govern," Hamilton and Adair; "American State University," Foerster; "World and Man as Science Sees Them," edited by Moulton; "Analysis of Art," Parker; "Country Dance Book," Tolman and Page; "Small Talk," Nicolson; "Vermont," Federal Writers' Project; "American Messiahs," the Unofficial Observer; and "Cambridge Shorter History of India."

DREAM'S FATAL

Easterner Dies After Plunge From Window at Home.

KEENE, N. H.—(INS)—Trying to escape from butting goats—in a dream—caused the death of John Mulligan, 66. He died at Elliot Community hospital from heart failure and shock suffered when he fell from a window. Mulligan told authorities before his death he dreamed of goats butting him around.

Keep your addresses filed in a notebook. Then when Christmas comes you won't have that last-minute rush and hunt.

110 NEW SPANS BUILT IN COUNTY IN THREE YEARS

Engineer Points Out Program Largest In 2 Decades, Has Eliminated Many Hazards.

The construction of 110 new bridges in Richland county in the past three years, representing the county's largest bridge building program in two decades, has resulted in the elimination of numerous traffic hazards, County Engineer Howard C. Sword pointed out today.

Cost of the three-year program was estimated by Sword at nearly $150,000, with two-thirds of the amount contributed by federal agencies and the remainder by the county.

Until a survey was originally undertaken by CWA, the first work relief agency, Richland county did not even have an inventory of its bridges," Sword said. He added that CWA made the inventory and drew the plans, while a few bridges were built under FERA and the major part of them after WPA came into existence.

WPA Furnishes Labor.

With few exceptions all of the labor for the work was provided by WPA, with from 20 to 40 men employed on each project over a period of six to eight weeks. The peak labor load was 120 men.

"Considered from the traffic angle," Sword said, "the new bridges represent the changing of 110 bridges from dangerous one-way structures to modern bridges equal to the traffic needs of the communities."

The new structures were widened from 12 or 14 feet to the standard road width of 20 or 22 feet, Sword pointed out, and were constructed of concrete as compared with the old wood and steel bridges

Sword has assigned R. C. Barrett, deputy county engineer, to a new survey of the county's bridges which are in need of repair or replacement. He said WPA officials indicated they would favor extension of the bridge-building project in the county next spring if funds are available.

Book of the Week

TO HAVE AND NOT HAVE, by Ernest Hemingway. Charles Scribner's sons. New York. $2.50. 262 pp.

* * *

Ernest Hemingway's first novel in seven years gives a clear picture of the Key West natives and their battle to make a living by smuggling almost anything from Cuba to the United States.

The new book revolves around the adventures of Harry Morgan who is a native of Key West, Florida—that paradise of the "haves" and purgatory of the "have nots."

The hero owns a fast motor launch in which he takes out fishing parties, runs rum, guns and sometimes human contraband. His life is a lonely struggle to keep himself, his wife, and daughters away from the edge of the "have not" category.

His friends see him as a man of no pity, least of all for himself. All his life he has played a lone hand in a hard world and it is only in the climax of the novel that he realizes the failure of his philosophy.

The readers see him in the round—through his own words and thoughts, through the eyes of Albert, his best friend whom he unwittingly sends to his death, through his adoring but baffling wife, and through the series of incidents which make up the book.

As a contrast to Morgan, Hemingway portrays the wealthy wasters, literary weaklings, women of the world and languid men who with their palatial yachts make up the "haves."

The scenes of the book — the Florida Keys; the water front, tough and rowdy, of Key West; the blue waters of the gulf stream; Havana, and the sea between it and the mainland.—C M.

TAX TROUBLES

Fiji Islanders Wrathful Over Nuisance Levies.

SUVA, Fiji Islands—(INS)—Tax troubles have hit the Fiji Islands.

The curly-topped islanders, once savage fighters and cannibals but now partly civilized and completely educated, have become quite wrathful over what they consider iniqitous levies

Fiji is one of the most prosperous of British colonies, having a surplus of approximately 500,000 pounds of assets over liabilities.

But behind this fact, declare the natives, are a constantly irksome lost of nuisance taxes.

SCIENCE HUNTS KEY TO ANCIENT FLINT CHIPPING

Ohio State Museum to Open Lithic Laboratory In Move to Revive Art.

COLUMBUS— (U.P.) —An attempt to "rediscover" the lost art of flint-chipping, brought to an astonishing degree of perfection by pre-historic man on the American continent, has been announced by the Ohio State Archeological ad Historical society here.

Henry Clyde Shetrone, director of the Ohio State museum, announced a "lithic laboratory for the eastern United States" will be established shortly in the museum in an effort to duplicate the flint chipper's art.

Shetrone recently returned from a tour of England and France, where he studied the techniques used in working flint and other lithic materials. He made moving pictures of the so-called flint-knappers of Brandon, England, where the manufacture of gun-flints has been pursued for centuries.

The trade at Brandon now is principally with native East African tribes and Asiatic inlanders.

The purpose of Shetrone's visit was to study techniques supposedly common to all flint chippers, including pre-historic man.

"Flint chipping probably should be called a neglected rather than a lost art," Shetrone said. "It isn't that we don't know how to chip flint; certain techniques just defy our skill."

He displayed a thin, delicately-cut flint knife blade of American origin as an example of this.

"Just how these blades were cut defies our knowledge," Shetrone said. "Even with metal tools, which pre-historic man did not possess, we cannot duplicate the thinness."

Books For Children

(Available at Mansfield Public Library)

1937 has given us "Another Here and Now Story Book" by Lucy Sprague Mitchell. The author arranges her book in an unusual fashion. The stories are given in groups, for the two-year olds, three, four, five, and six-year olds. After the stories come a few poems, and there are charming little pictures all through the book.

It is 16 years since the first "Here and Now Story Book" was first published. It was a great success and has, had to date, 17 printings. For the most part, the stories are about things that are familiar to every modern child. In her foreward, Mrs. Mitchell explains that the authors are teachers, and some of them are mothers. All the stories have been tried out on groups of children, not once, but over a period of years.

Father and His Daughter Attend College Together

ITHACA, N. Y.—(INS)—Father and daughter went to classes together at the opening of the fall semester at Cornell university here.

The father is Don Ward, Onondaga county agricultural agent for the past several years, who is taking graduate work in agricultural economics and rural education.

His daughter is Barbara J. Ward, who is enrolled in the New York State College of Home Economics. She is a graduate of Syracuse Central high last June and was secretary of her class.

Mr. Ward was graduated from Cornell's New York State College of Agriculture in 1912. He is on an eight months leave of absence from his work in Syracuse.

HAY 7 FEET TALL

LYONS FALLS, N. Y.—(U.P.)—Timothy hay measuring 7 feet, 3 inches in height has been cut on Leon Kelly's farm. Kelly said the hay grew on old meadow land which had not been plowed or fertilized for more than nine years.

STUBBORN RHEUMATISM

Most of the aches, pains, stiffness, soreness and lameness of stubborn rheumatism, sciatica neuritis and rheumatic gout are caused or aggravated by excess uric acid or other circulating poisons.

Vast United States Steel corporation announces changes in executive personnel, elevating younger hands to take over the work of administering the $2,000,000,000 corporation. Myron C. Taylor, 63, will retire as board chairman next April 3 to be succeeded by Edward R. Stettinius, jr., 38, who now heads the finance committee. Benjamin F. Fairless, 47, now head of the subsidiary, Carnegie-Illinois Steel Co., will become president. William A. Irvin, 63, now president, will become vice chairman of the board, a new post. E. M Voorhees, vice chairman of the finance committee, will succeed Stettinius. In announcing change in high personnel, U. S. steel directors ordered a distribution to common stockholders of $8,700,000, $1 a share, first common dividend in five and one-half years.

COLD, SO SNAKES HUNT 'HOT' SPOT

And Youth Finds Out He Chose Wrong Place to Snooze.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.—(U.P.)—It was a chilly night and 17-year-old Herbert Thompson of Camden, N. J., who was enroute to Hollywood in quest of a movie job, was sleepy.

So he climbed a tall board fence and bedded down in the heart of Breckenridge park. He awakened with a start when something cold slithered across his body.

Thompson screamed and fainted. He had chosen a bed in the park's reptile gardens. Park attendants untwined several snakes which attracted by the youth's warm body had entwined themselves about him.

The area of Manchoukuo, 1,303,143 square miles, was announced officially for the first time in March, 1935, previously having been a mater of estimation.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 28, 1937.

"I have grown too old to make speeches," says Bernard Shaw—in fact it appears that most people have.

Widmer, 31-year-old Bird gang bandit, has been sentenced to 65 years in Alcatraz—and won't he be surprised by the changes when he gets out!

Tickets for a proposed round-the-world air service will cost approximately $2,300—which may result in some folks postponing the trip until next year.

Mansfield Needs Its Playgrounds.

ON a separate small ballot which Mansfield voters will receive when they go to the polls next Tuesday, they will be asked to approve continuance, for another five years, of the one-tenth of a mill tax to provide money to carry on this city's recreational program—playgrounds, etc.

While the ballot is headed, "Proposed increase in tax rate," it should be made clear to all voters that this it NOT really a tax increase but merely sanctions continuance of a present tax approved by voters five years ago.

This one-tenth of a mill tax represents the payment of only ten cents a year on each one thousand dollars of taxable valuation, which means very little to individual taxpayers, as compared with the essential community service performed by use of the several thousand dollars thus accumulated for recreational purposes.

A favorable vote of 65 per cent is required to pass the levy, with indications that public sentiment strongly favors the proposal.

Oratorical Freedom.

AN INTERESTING situation has arisen regarding Father Charles E. Coughlin, the "radio priest" who has been off the air waves lately because the archbishop of his diocese refused to sanction such activity.

Public meetings have been held in some cities insisting that he be permitted to resume his broadcasting. One such meeting resulted in a resolution saying:

"We believe in freedom to worship according to the dictates of our conscience, as the Constitution of the United States provides, and also in freedom of speech which is guaranteeed to every American citizen."

There seems to be a confusion of thought here. The constitutional freedom of speech is political. Such freedom Father Coughlin has now as much as ever, and no political authority in America would, or could, interfere with it. Freedom of speech within a religious order or any other non-political organization is another thing, depending on the rules of that organization

The plain fact seems to be that Father Coughlin's present silence is a private matter, officially concerning only him and his church.

For a More Orderly Halloween.

WITH a Halloween parade planned for tomorrow night, and improvement in pre-Halloween behavior appearing to prevail in Mansfield this week, there is indication that the general trend toward less destructive observance of this occasion will be noted over the week-end.

When the high cost of Halloween damage is considered, together with the tacit encouragement of rowdyism among adult roisterers, it may be doubted if the leeway that has heretofore been accorded youthful pranksters is justified.

It is unlikely that any properly-brought-up child in Mansfield would wilfully damage property of other people, but the fact remains that even such an apparently minor prank as streaking automobile bodies and windows with soap or paraffin can result in leaving permanent marks on the car, thus reducing its appearance and value. Deflating tires might also, in some instances, result in serious trouble and expense.

In more recent years, in many cities, Halloween observance has taken the form of children's parties, held in homes or school buildings, with wholesome indoor fun taking the place of outdoor disorder and property damage.

It cannot be doubted that it is the inclination of many people to leave their car in the garage through the evenings for a week or more preceding Halloween, rather than using it in the customary way and thus take chances of having it tampered with and possibly damaged while parked on the street. There should be no need for such fear in a city of well-behaved people.

It is recalled, also, that the obnoxious features of Halloween observance date back to a time when there was no such organization as Boy Scouts, and similar youthful activities which tend toward encouragement of proper behavior and doing "good turns."

Credit would be reflected on the children of Mansfield if they, themselves, should take the initiative in making Halloween an occasion for harmless fun, with the element of property damage and neighborhood annoyance eliminated.

Some such plan, devised by the children, would appear to merit co-operation of parents and the community as a whole.

Rules for Safe Hunting.

THE AMERICAN RED CROSS, which has established many highway first aid stations, is now undertaking a new safety work. It seeks to protect hunters from themselves and from careless fellow-hunters. So far the association's work is primarily a warning, a list of things a hunter should or should not do in order to prevent accidents.

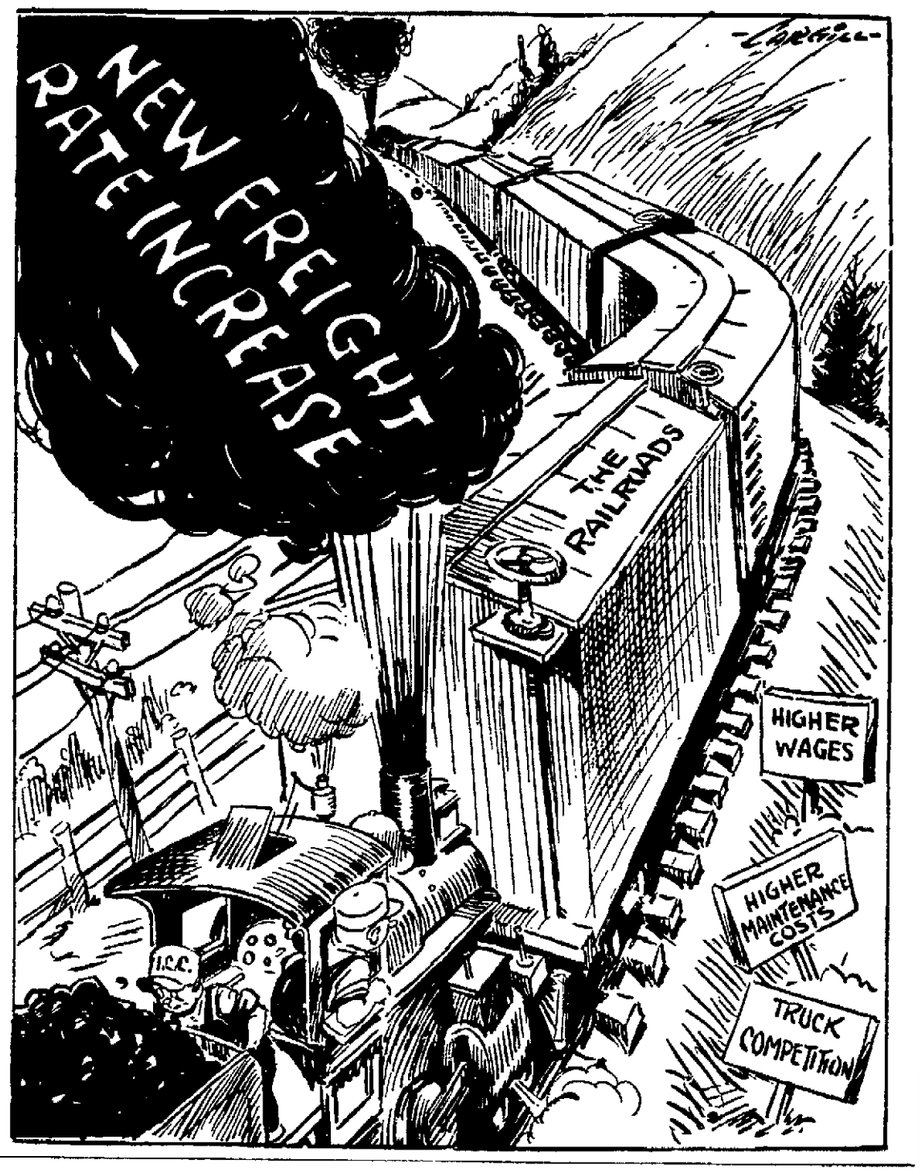
"Hunting accidents caused 2,000 deaths in 1936," says an official of the Red Cross, as an introduction to the rules for safe hunting. Then:

"Don't pull a gun carelessly from an automobile.
"Remove your shells before crawling through a fence.
"Don't use a gun to club game from the brush.
"Don't carry your gun cocked.
"Never point a weapon at any one in fun.
"Don't deploy ahead of inexperienced hunters.
"Don't leave a gun where children can reach it.
"Don't leave a loaded gun in the house.
"Don't allow the gun muzzle to clog with mud or snow.
"Deer hunters should wear red coats or hats, because deer don't."

Several of those rules should be taken to heart by the people who don't hunt but who keep guns in their homes. The gun that everybody thought wasn't loaded has been a death-dealing weapon in the hands of children and adults.

Hitler's repeated prediction, "I shall not live forever," at least holds out hope for the future.

WILL IT "MAKE THE GRADE?"



Age Is Against Cordell Hull For President

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—For a long time Secretary of State Cordell Hull has been a Democratic presidential possibility. The other day the Tennessee state senate formally indorsed him for the 1940 nomination.

He will not get it. He is a little too old—will be in his last year toward 70 by next presidential election day.

There is no other count against him.

To the cortrary, I venture to say that he is the most generally and highly respected member of today's cabinet.

It is just too bad that Father Time has him stymied.

* * *

NOT SPECTACULAR

The beauty of Cordell Hull is that his reputation is based upon unadulterated brains and probity.

He is not spectacular. He is no spell-binder. Oratorically he is unimpressive, vocally speaking. He looks well, indeed; is a handsome old man. His voice, however, is squeaky; poor, for radio purposes.

But what Hull SAYS is the "goods."

He does not make an audience holler and yell with excitement at his resonance, but folk go home and THINK about what he has told them.

* * *

OUTSIDE HIS MIND

I do not believe that presidential aspirations ever have bothered him; he did not consider that, in his case, they were worth having. Anyway, he remarked to me long ago that he was sure the nomination was impossible of a candidate as far south as his home state of Tennessee—not in his generation.

It might be possible now. John N. Garner is mentioned, and Garner is older than Hull and from farther south also—Texas.

But Garner will not be nominated, either. He is not suggested seriously.

I suppose a man who had attained the White House at the age, say, of 60 (and that is considered old) might be RE-nominated, but, no man of 64 or more would stand an initial chance in a national convention.

* * *

TOO GOOD TO OVERLOOK

Cordell Hull was so almighty good that the Roosevelt administration literally had to have him for "window dressing" when it came into power.

That, I am positive, is all for which the administration intended him.

Its obvious design was to have Raymond Moley really run the state department. And that is what Moley would have done if Hull had not been of chilled steel construction.

There was a while when Hull looked to be finished; most folk expected him to resign, broken.

He did not; he simply was stronger than the administration.

* * *

A SOUND PHILOSOPHY

Cordell Hull, in short, has a politico-economic philosophy.

He sticks to it as any scientist sticks to his belief in the law of gravitation.

The New Deal calls itself democratic. Hull IS democratic.

He is not a partisan.

He told me this once:

"The Democraats are 75 per cent right and 25 per cent wrong; the Republicans are 25 per cent right and 75 per cent wrong."

* * *

A REAL DEMOCRAT

I have interviewed Cordell Hull as a humble member of the house of representatives, eating sandwiches for lunch in the "old house building."

I have interviewed him as an august senator, in the senate's offices.

I have interviewed him as secretary of state, in his quarters in the "state building" on Pennsylvania avenue.

He is a democrat, with a little "d."

But he never will be president; I should bet on that.

Listen, World!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

Why Must We Respect Those We Despise?

YOUNG BETTY DORLEY, of Quincy, Mass., is wondering. And with considerable heat!

Why should she have to respect people she despises?

"Silly old hens and clucking old roosters—

"Mean old Drizzlepusses—

"Pompous False-Fronts, who pose all over the lot . . ."

"Why," demands Betty, "must I be nice to 'em? Mother says I must. She won't even let me argue about it—just says flat that young people should respect older ones. But I can't see why being a peevish, stupid, selfish, tiresome old fossil should qualify anyone to respect."

NOR CAN I, BETTY!

This practice, of honoring a combination of ancient bones and bad manners, merely because they've survived a lot of calendars, has always seemed absurd. Moreover, I suspect it's responsible for a tremendous amount of unnecessary cussedness—particularly of the domestic variety.

If old folks had to work for their prestige and privileges, instead of acquiring it automatically—along with a lower set and hardened arteries—they might be more inclined to act as regular citizens and less as malignant blights.

I'm 54 myself. And not so hard to take. But I know full well that I'd be the world's most peevish pest if it didn't endanger my pay check and domestic rating. It's human nature to get by with murder if we can . . . and act pretty only if we have to.

I'll wager anything that Grandpa would see a great light, if we made pestiness as unprofitable for him as it is for Junior. But as long as he can hog the best chair n' first look at the funnies without penalties, it's a cinch he'll continue to do so.

However, Betty, there's more—much more—to the story than this. It may indeed seem idiotic to respect those who haven't earned it, and assist those who are not worthy of it. But that isn't the point. It isn't a question of showing respect to unmannerly ancients or unworthy loafers—BUT OF HONORING OUR OWN IDEALS.

For example—we are told to "honor our parents." Yet we all know scores of parents who are individually unworthy of honor . . . parents who disgrace their title by their selfishness, laziness, stupidity and cruelty. We can't honestly honor such parents, as individuals. But we can and should honor the relationship they represent . . . and we demonstrate our own fineness when we do so.

We may not REVERENCE the other fellow, but we REVEAL ourselves by the way we treat him. The hat one lifts to a lady . . . the card one sends on Mother's Day . . . the dime one drops into a beggar's cup . . . may all be undeserved by the persons who receive them. But we, ourselves, deserve that courtesy, that charity.

THEY ARE THE TRIBUTE WE PAY TO THAT DREAM WITHIN OURSELVES OF BEAUTY AND TRUTH, COURAGE AND LOVE.

And again, across the years, the picture comes. A gentle Christ before a crowd of sneering questioners, warped by hate and greed. Beggars . . . children . . . why should one feed the poor, protect the helpless, honor the shameless? And then His immortal answer—

"INASMUCH AS YE HAVE DONE IT UNTO ONE OF THE LEAST OF THESE MY BRETHREN, YE HAVE DONE IT UNTO ME."

Lift the hat . . . send the card . . . drop the coin . . . hold back the angry word . . . you have done it unto the god in yourself.

Cathedral and Idealism.

Reims cathedral, one of the world's finest examples of Gothic architecture, has been restored, consecrated and reopened as a place of worship. After 19 years, all the damage of the World war which is possible to remove has been erased. The preservation of the beauty of the original lines of the great edifice is attributable largely to the financial assistance of John D. Rockefeller, jr., and to the patience and skill of the architect, M. Deneux.

The cathedral built during the 13th to 15th centuries was the scene of the coronation of 36 kings of France. It was first a target for German shell fire Sept. 4, 1914. Later it was used by the Germans as a hospital and in turn by the French. Straw piled on the floor was ignited and caused almost as great damage as high explosive. Its destruction has stood before civilization as one of the most disgraceful acts of the World war.

The architectural masterpiece arises again as an evidence and an assurance that idealism, reverence and a sense of beauty have not perished from the earth in spite of the devastation of a horrible war.—Toledo Blade.

Keeping Step

By LESLIE EICHEL

Advise Against Protecting Nationals.

THE MAJORITY of Americans are horrified when they hear of the invasion of China by the Japanese and of Spain by Fascists from Italy—and perhaps Nazis from Germany. The inclination is to "demand" decency. But how?

The only unwarlike means is to express horror and to try to make our own democracy so true that all peoples will yearn for it.

We ourselves must be clear of any penetration into a land that is not our own. Our own hands must be clean.

"But they are!" we shout—particularly as to Spain and China.

It thus is a shock when an able American student of Oriental life tells us they are not.

Pearl S. Buck, who has lived most of her life in China and who wrote the unforgettable "The Good Earth," calls Americans in China to book in an article in the November issue of Asia magazine.

* * *

U. S. NATIONALS ABROAD

We cull a few pertinent phrases from Miss Buck's article:

"The only civilized and sensible policy for nations that are determined not to become entangled in foreign wars is to declare themselves not responsible for their nationals who choose to live or work or travel abroad. . . . An individual should represent only himself, not his race or his people. If he is insulted, no one is insulted beyond himself. If he is killed, he alone is killed, and no one else, and there is no incident. Once this policy is made clear, if it ever is chosen, there will be an end to incidents, and there will be an end to these swashbuckling formal protests which begin so loud and end so small, and which undermine a nation's prestige. If we will not use guns to back a protest, then let there be no protest. . . . Let the risks of living abroad be taken by those who choose to live abroad."

But American "intruism"—how do we intrude?

"It will always seem to me utterly unjust that Americans peacefull pursuing their livelihood at home should have to pay for (American) gunboats to patrol Yangtze waters because so relatively few Americans want to live for their own purposes in China. I say this, although for years I was one of those few Americans and at least once I owed my life to the fact that an American destroyer rescued me from death in a Chinese war. But I felt that day, as I feel now, that the destroyer had no business there, and I ought to have had the sense to have foreseen the danger and escaped it myself in time. . . .

"Who are we of the west to tell other nations that they must surround our nationals with all the comforts and safety of home? The indignation of Orientals against this policy, which produced as its fruit the absurd injustice of extraterritoriality, is a righteous indignation." (The United States indulges in that extraterritoriality in China.)

* * *

WAY TO KEEP OUT?

Miss Buck, who urged in a previous article that we by all means keep out of Oriental disputes, desires the American people to recognize that in this modern day, a nation's prestige "no longer rests upon old chivalric attitudes towards its flag or is nationals." She adds, "'Prestige rests solely upon power, the power of internal prosperity, of peace, of self-regulation. Only a bantam nation needs to shout and protest for pride's sake" .! . . when an "incident" occurs. Ignore the incidents, when they do occur. . . .

And—Miss Buck did not say this—offer our good services to both sides equally for mediation, with an understanding of the grievances of each side. That seems to be the policy set for the Americans at the Nine-Power treaty conference in Brussels. But issue no threats, not even a gentle admonition. Both Japan and China are sensitive. And both nations may desire to come to a wise old father confessor who knows how not to interfere.

But when the innocent are slain by bombs, when right seems to be trampled by might in two quarters of the globe . . . it is difficult to think one's way through. It seems quite an unjust world. But were democracy and understanding and justice ever furthered by threats of war? When we went forth to "save democracy," we lost nearly all the democracy we had at home. Men were sent to prison for long terms even for thinking democratic thoughts, much less speaking them—and intolerance sat in power for a decade. The fight for democracy and justice always will remain an internal battle; the fruits of its victory spread not by the sword but by a far greater and speedier weapon—thought.

If we could glimpse into the future, we might see Japan's militarists overthrown because their invaders into China have been converted to Chinese communism.

And would it not be possible that when the foreign legions go home from Spain, all Spain again may become as one—a Loyalist Spain? And may it not be possible that Mussolini's Fascist legions will bring home to Italy not so much victory as anti-Fascist views on democracy?

Health Advice

By DR. ROYAL COPELAND

Health Check-up Vital to School Child.

AS I WRITE this article many children have returned to school after their long and happy vacation. It is probably that many of these young folks have gone back without receiving medical examinations, tests which are essential for a healthy and successful school year.

At the beginning of the summer, you will recall, I advised parents to make sure that their children had all their physical defects corrected. Children are liable to have such disorders as decayed teeth, poor vision, enlarged and diseased tonsils, enlarged glands, defective hearing, disorders of the ductless glands, anemia and other disturbances that might interfere with school progress and cause repeated absence from school. All such disturbances should be corrected.

No one can deny that many children are backward in their school work only because of poor health. Too often their troubles are of such a minor nature and so hidden as to be completely overlooked. On this account, unfortunately, they go on for several years before any attempt is made to correct the defects.

Work Is Difficult.

Children who are susceptible to colds and infections are usually underweight, poor eaters and restless sleepers. It is difficult to see how they could possibly be good students. It is amazing and gratifying to witness the improvement in the health of the child when the underlying cause of the physical weakness is removed. The improvement in school work, too, is equally astonishing.

If a child complains of some disability or has some apparent physical defects, medical attention should be obtained. It may be unwise to permit the youngster to attend school. He cannot be expected to make the necessary strides in school work until his physical health is restored to normal.

The time will come when every school will have its dental and medical clinic. Such an arrangement guarantees that every child receives the needed physical attention.

Of course, every child should be vaccinated before being permitted to attend school. I am glad to say that in certain states this is a rigid requirement. In addition to inoculaton against smallpox, the child should receive injections against diphtheria. It is a cruelty to a child to deprive him of this protection against serious illness.

Room for Advancement.

It is true that the health of the average child of today shows great improvement over that of the school child of a few years ago. But there is still room for further advancement. Every child should have a complete physical examination at least twice a year and visits to the dentist quite as frequently. If these simple precautions are taken, many of the chronic disabilities of later life will be prevented. In addition, the child will make rapid strides in his studies.

Three Mothers.

I WONDER whether something isn't happening that the men don't know about. . . . wonder whether something is happening that even the women don't understand.

During the last month I have heard of three divorces among families of my acquaintances. In each broken family there were two children, oddly enough. In each case the husband sued for the divorce. And finally, in each divorce, the father, not the motner, was given the children and the wife was more than willing that this should be done. (They were not old children, either, the youngest of the six was three years old, the oldest is but 12.)

To me this is something new. And something that I do not quite understand. . . . I do not know any of these mothers who gave up their children, so I have no firsthand knowledge of their motives and reasons. I know only the husbands and all they said was that wives were tired of being "tied down" or were "restless" and, in one case, in love with another man who did not want children in the new home.

Now, I know a considerable number of mothers who confess that at times they are "fed up" with the continuous strain of caring for their children and who wish, at times, that they could be "free." But I think I do not know one single woman who, faced with the choice of giving up her children forever, would yield to it and go her own way through life. . . . Men sometimes abandon their families, wander off into the wilderness and do not see them again. And sometimes some poor distraught woman, too poor or too ashamed to care for her baby, leaves it on a doorstep in the hope that it will know more security than she can give it. . . . But my masculine understanding falters when I face the thought of these three mothers who cut the threads that bound them to their children and walked out of their lives.

I'm not "blaming" these mothers. I can't, because I do not know all the facts . . . But I'm bewildered and I wish some woman who thinks she understands them would write to me, and tell me what she thinks of those three mothers.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS

All men have an inherent ability to make mistakes.

It's easy to get all the credit you want when you don't want it.

The individual who walks fastest when going to lunch usually walks slowest when going back to work.

McIntyre's New York Day by Day

AT A BATHROOM window this morning, gazing out on New York going to work I was impressed with the way te town fairly scoots along. From an apartment spire near by a rabbity man rushed a half block one way, a half block the other, then pounced into a taxi.

He was a symbol of Manhattan's tempo, emulating Leacock's horseman who mounted his steed and rode off in all directions. As a burgher taking the village largely afoot, I have long noticed how few there are who permit walking to diminuendo to leisurely stride.

Somehow, walking along and observing things brackets one as a gawk—a jasper who couldn't handle a French menu at the Ritz. As a matter of fact, like Paris, New York was made for the promenader. It is a veritable paradise for the saunterer.

Nowhere has the window dresser's art attained such skill. Versailles with its fountains aspray in miniature. Papier mache golfers swinging over their courses. A half million strand of pearls against a fluff of black velvet. Pocket movies of travel bureaus showing lands afar. And so on.

Few high-powered executives work so hard and relax so successfully as Conde Nast. In the mid-Victorian sense and not according to Broadway interpretation, he is probably Manhattan's most perfect man-about-town. His parties are a successful mingling of society, stage and literati, and he is always present at auspicious first nights. A fashion plate without ostentation, he is regarded by many as the best-groomed man in the metropolis.

Somewhere I have read that Carl Hubbell, the Giants crack pitcher, as a farm boy near Carthage, Mo., spent hours throwing stones at a barn door until he could hit knot holes no bigger than a dime. In these days of delving into the complexes of the young, the experts would probably ticket such monotony as sub-normal. In a boarding house where I used to reside the landlady had a son, aloof and detached for one of 15 years, who spent all his time fooling with the innards of a clock. He never played with other children and most of us boarders thought him "queer." Yet at 23 he invented an automobile device that made him independent. All of which suggests that parents let boys alone during formative years so long as they are not in bad company and up to no mischief. Marconi was a brooding nipper, always tinkering and puttering and apparently accomplishing nothing.

Few men in journalism occupied a place as unique as Ed Howe. Or wrote so vigorously to the end. My affection for him was deep. In floundering around to syndicate a column, he was the first editor and writer of prominence to throw me a life line. Something of mine in the Kansas City Star pleased him and he took time out of a busy life to cheer me on my way. Later when we were both wintering at Miami Beach we had many afternoons at the races, and motor rides together. Several times a year we exchanged letters and his last one, almost an undecipherable sprawl, because his blindness was nearly total, wound up dismally with: "There is not much to do now but wait, but after 82 years of it one doesn't much mind."

Thingumbobs: Broadway's most beloved press agent was Ray Henderson, killed recently in an airplane crack-up in Greece. . . . Both of Will Roger's sons are earnest gum chewers, just like their Dad . . . John Chapman, of the Daily News, is the only linguist among the columnists . . . Corey Ford, who loves to fish and makes it pay writing articles about it, has a dozen fishing flies named for him.

Pastel: A boy and girl in the Waldorf lounge having cocktails. He was one of those bright fellows who does not have much money, but gets around. They were to have cocktails, go to his apartment where he was "to get an important telephone call" and then out to dinner. The table was dotted with dishes of pop corn, pretzels, peanuts and potato chips. The young man was making heavy inroads on the outlay. The girl was drinking quietly. Finally the boy, jokingly: "Why Anna, you are not eating a thing." And she, eyeing the nuts, chips, etc., a shade contemptuously, mumbled: "Yes, and I'll probably regret it later on."

CHAPTER XXX

"Back to New York tomorrow," Gloria agreed. "And it'll be hot! But we'll get the children up to Connecticut, and every day now will be a little cooler. October is Peter's busiest time, getting the autumn programs ready, and then it'll be Christmas; and then it'll be June and the Baggleys will be on their way."

"I think I could manage it," Tony said, his eyes bright with excitement at the mere thought. "It isn't that I'm any better, really. But I'm so much stronger."

"The girls aren't a care any longer; they'll be a real help," Kitty agreed eagerly. "It's the first time Tony wanted to do it," she went on, "and I've always known that when he wanted to he could."

"You'll have mountains and a creek to look at," Gloria said, "and croquet to watch. And the girls can play tennis and swim at the club. And you'll get back here before the first snow."

"I'd like to stay for the red leaves," Kitty said. "Connecticut in October can be so wonderful!"

"Well," Gloria said eloquently, "we own the house. The spare rooms are yours!"

"What sort of house is it, Glory?"

"You saw a sketch of it on the Christmas card. It's colonial New England, rather badly modernized. But it's big, and it has barns and fences and things for the children. It's not in a fashionable part of the world, but there's a nice village, we like it. It's two hours out of the city, too far for commuters and not far enough for the millionaires, but Peter's hours are so queer that we have to keep a little apartment in town anyway. Peter's always home all day Saturday; he and I go in to town on Sunday afternoon, and I come back Monday whether he can or not."

"I'll love it," Kitty decided.

"Ah, and it'll be wonderful to have you, after that double disappointment when Mary was ill last year."

"Yitta Mairy," Mary, hearing her name, said complacently from half-slumber.

'Mary's going in to Susan," Peter said.

• • •

Kitty went in with Peter, Mary's soft gold head limp upon her father's shoulder. Gloria lay on, stretched in her chair.

"Tony, one could look on and on into the tops of these oaks, and never grow tired of them and never need any other tonic! Look how red the light is against the branches and how gold on the leaves! If we could understand just one oak."

'You're a born reporter to have found that out," Tony observed dryly.

"Ah, yes," she conceded, unruffled. "But every one has to find it out for himself, doesn't he?"

"I suppose so."

"Tony,' Gloria said, with a little effort, "are you aware that you saved my life for me nearly five years ago?"

"Meaning the talk we had that rainy night, while Peter was sick?"

"Meaning that."

"No, I didn't do anything but clear up your thoughts a little, as a big brother may," he said. "You'd have made a success of anything you undertook, Gloria. You'd have solved it, married to Karl or married to Peter, or whatever you did."

"Don't you believe it!" she said in a low voice. "There are things you can't solve."

"You've never regretted it, then?"

"Regretted it!" she echoed, with a brief laugh. "Oh, yes, there were hours when I thought I couldn't stand it," she said. "But they weren't the sensible hours. And Peter was being tremendously sensible. He was talking jobs and budgets and living quarters, you remember we were in San Francisco for a little while? And then—"

"Then you began writing the radio things?"

"No, he began that. He began writing them for this Florry Le Page—remember her? The girl who did the old lady voice so well. And then I began to look them over and change them a little, and put into them things I'd actually heard the old people say, at the Bayview, you know, and so the whole thing started.'

"To be made into several other pretty good things," Tony observed.

"We were lucky," Gloria said immediately to retract it. "No," she went on, 'it wasn't luck. Peter'd had months, years of struggle then, trying to make good, he'd earned his success. But the truth is, Tony," she went on thoughtfully, "we knew, we both knew, that it would be all right. Somehow we went into all—head on, as it were—knowing that it would be all right. The other thing would have been all wrong. Not for any other woman, perhaps, but for me. And that I found it out in time I owe to you."

"You owe nothing to me," said Tony. "Sooner or later our hearts get broken in this life, and then—if we've anything at all in us, we learn something."

"Why look ye here or there?" Gloria quoted in a low voice. 'Lo, the Kingdom of Heaven is within you!'"

"Have you ever seen him since, Gloria?"

"Karl? Once. Twice, really, but once it was only a glimpse. It was when Jimmy and Peter and I were on the top of a bus. It was a terribly hot day last summer, we'd come in for a special program and were going to a place on Fifty-seventh street for lunch. This was before we turned out of Fifth avenue, near the cathedral. Karl was walking with quite a pleasant-looking girl—his wife, I imagine. You knew that he'd been married?'

"He wrote Kitty."

"The first time I saw him,' Gloria went on," was before that, it was before Mary was born, at a garden party some woman gave for charity. It was a hot day, but I was feeling rather limp and I went into the house to see if I could find a cup of tea, and quite suddenly I was facing Karl, in the hallway. We shook hands, or something, and went over to a window seat and sat there, talking." Glorida stopped.

Tony gave her a keen glance. "Seem funny?"

"Funny!" she echoed. "It all came back,' she said simply. "One doesn't get over it, ever. We were both shaking—I don't know what we said, but I know his hands were as cold as ice, and mine, too."

"You talked?"

"Yes. Fast, you know, as if we never could stop. And then quite suddenly he got up and went away, and I wandered out to the dining room and found some coffee or something. But it stayed with me for days—the old feeling—the excitement of it." She stopped.

"The strange thing, Tony," she went on presently in a different voice, "is that if we'd been man and wife all those years I wouldn't have felt that thrill, would I?"

'You could think that?' he asked.

"No, I couldn't. But you'd said that years ago, you know, that it was only when one refused love—that sort of love—that it lived. I told him that day that I'd never be sorry we'd cared for each other, that I thought it was an added richness in my life, to have had it. And afterward Mary's coming and Jimmy's broken leg pretty well blotted out the memory of those 20 minutes," Gloria ended, laughing. "I chose what I wanted, and I still want it."

Tony was silent, and after a while she spoke again:

"Is what I'm trying to say making sense to you, Tony?'

Tony cleared his throat. "Very much so," he said.

"Well, I guess that's all there is to it," Gloria said. "Except that I'm a very happy woman and that I have the finest children in the world. And I have an awfully good husband, Tony."

"I know it," said Tony.

"Darling with the children, always good natured, too good for me,' Gloria said. "Peter's not a superman, but then I'm not a superwoman, either!"

'I don't know about that. You're rather—rather an extraordinary—well, let it go at that!" the man said.

"I think maybe I'm mother first and wife afterward, Tony. At least, Peter said so. It's always a miracle to me to say 'my children.' Some women say 'my husband' that way. But Peter's one of the children."

"Well, and what of it?" Tony growled. "That doesn't mean anything. The men women mother are lucky! And lots of men, if they had the woman's end of it to do, would be like that about their children.'

"I'm not so.' And, for that matter, Peter's as cracked about the children as I am. We do everything with them, we take them everywhere. We're planning already for their bigger days—picnics and house parties and their friends with us for holidays. And consequently,' Gloria added with a little self-conscious deliberation, "we're pleased about March.'

"March eh?" Is that the way it is?" Tony said, after a second. 'Kitty gave me a hint that there'd be a Gloria, to keep the name going."

"A daughter would be Gloria, we think."

"And a son Peter?"

"No. Peter says not. I say not. We're all for 'Anthony Baggley Rudd,' long may he wave!' Gloria said, with a little break in her voice.

Ah, my dear, Anthony said.

It was quite dark now in the garden. They could not see each other's faces. They could hear laughter and clatter from far away where Kitty had all the children together in the kitchen, they could hear the breathing of the sea, lost in the thick dusk down below the oak trees.

DEALERS, UNION TO SEEK PEACE IN COAL STRIKE

Confer on Drivers' Demands as Fuel Is 'Doled Out' to Only Empty Bins.

necessarily have to be increased anyway.

"In view of these increased costs, we feel that it would be an added burden on the consumer if the dealers were to meet these union demands that would force us to again boost the retail prices," the statement said.

The dealers explained that their average delivery cost to the consumer now was approximately $1.67 per ton. If the union demands are to be met, the cost would be raised by additional increase for hauling, higher pay for helpers, chute charges and increased carry in charges.

Says Pay Higher Than '29.

Members of the committee said that the wage scale now in effect was far in access to that of 1929 and that the standard wage for hauling at all of the 28 coal yards in the city was $1 per ton, where the drivers own their own equipment.

The committee added that increases in the hauling rates ranging from 10 to 16 per cent had gone into effect on Oct. 16 and had benefited drivers at all companies.

They said that the "dole" plan of the delivery of coal during the strike had been presented to them by the union, through Police Chief Meade K Bates.

Under this arrangement, companies are allowed to make deliveries up to one ton to homes where the bins are empty, where illness prevails and to the public schools and the hospital.

Davies said that one of his trucks had been turned back yesterday by pickets who claimed that the consumer had coal in his cellar.

Joe Huntsman, business agent for the local who formerly held a similar post with the Akron union, said that the pickets had been removed from the coal yards and were now using their automobiles in patrolling the streets.

Roving pickets follow delivery trucks to the homes where they inspect the coal bin to see that it is empty before allowing the fuel to be dumped.

In the agreement mailed to the 28 coal dealers, the union demands that the employer shall hire only union labor that comes under the jurisdiction of the union, and that all men, not members of the local, shall become members, within 24 hours.

The minimum wage demanded by the union for drivers who own their own trucks calls for rate of $1.15 per ton for hauling and 80 cents for half-ton loads. If coal is wheeled or carried in, an additional charge of 75 cents a ton would be assessed. Other additional charges would be 25 cents a ton for each flight of stairs the coal is carried and 25 cents for each chute used after the first 14-foot chute.

Orders obtained by drivers would entitle them to a commission of 30 cents per ton.

On the hourly basis, the demands call for $1.75 for all trucks up to 1½ ton capacity and $2.50 for all trucks over 1½ ton capacity.

Other demands are:

Drivers on equipment other than their own working on a percentage basis, shall receive not less than 60 per cent of the gross earnings of equipment to be based on the rates set forth by the union.

Drivers working on an hourly basis shall receive not less than 75 cents an hour.

Yardmen, warehousemen and helpers shall receive not less than 70 cents an hour.

The demand also states that any employe shall receive not less than five hours pay when required to report for work and in no event shall they be required to work split shifts.

Calls for "Check-Off."

The agreement also calls for pay twice the regular rates for all work performed on Sundays, holidays and after regular hours, which would be from 7:30 a. m. to 5 p. m.

In the period from May 1 to Oct. 1, no work would be performed on Saturday afternoons.

Incorporated in the agreement is the demand for a "check-off system" that would compel the employer to accept a written order from the employe that he is a member of the union and would direct the dealer to deduct his dues in the local from his wages as long as directed to do so by the employe.

Employes would not be required to take more than one-half hour for lunch and would not be financially responsible for loss or damage to the cargo or equipment under his charge

The union also asks seniority rights with no discrimination between company-owned equipment and private owned equipment in the event lay-offs are necessary.

Vote, Physical, Financial Aid.'

Meeting at the Delano lodge building last night, the recently formed Richland county Industrial council, made up of the 10 CIO locals, voted their "physical and financial" support to the strike, Andy Bishop, secretary of the council, said today.

In municipal court this morning, the case of Frank M. Glasgow, proprietor of the Direct Coal company, charged with assault and battery was continued until a later date on plea from both the defendant and the plaintiff, Lorenzo A. Wade, 145 North Main street. Wade was not in court but telephoned and asked for the continuance. He is a driver of the Kent Rummel Coal company.

The charges were filed yesterday by Wade following an altercation in Glasgow's office at 190 West Sixth street.

Schools, hospitals and hotels reported today that they were in no immediate danger of an exhausted fuel supply.

'FRAMED,' M'LAGLEN, BROTHER OF FILM STAR, SAYS IN JAIL CELL

HOLLYWOOD —(U.P.)— Capt. Sydney Leopold McLaglen, brother of the movie star Victor McLaglen, announced from his jail cell today that he had been employed as a secret agent to spread anti-semetic propaganda and spy on communists.

Indirectly, he blamed that work for his arrest. He was held for investigation after he allegedly demanded $20,000 from Philip Chancellor, millionaire Hollywood sportsman.

He declined to name his employer but he said that both the British and German consular authorities knew of his espionage and propaganda work and approved it.

He said that Chancellor wanted to write a book on espionage and that he offered to supply the material for the work. Chancellor told police that McLaglen's material turned out to be "merely anti-semetic propaganda," and he refused to pay the $20,000 that Mc Lagien demanded for it.

McLaglen was arrested when he left the studio of Chancellor's former secretary. He was alleged to have asked the secretary to sign an affidavit asserting that he heard Chancellor agree to pay McLaglen the money.

"It's a frame-up," McLaglen said, "and I'll prove it presently." He said his lawyer would ask for his release on a writ of habeas corpus.

"I'll blow the lid off this thing," he said.

P. T. A. COUNCIL HEARS REHDER

Health Commissioner Urges Campaign For Inoculation of School Children.

A talk on "Contagious Diseases," was given by Dr. R. C. Rehder, city-county health commissioner, at a meeting of the Mansfield Council of Parent-Teacher association last night in the Chamber of Commerce rooms in the Farmers Bank building.

Dr. Rehder recommended that each P.T.A. association conduct a campaign urging the innoculation of all children against small pox and diphtheria. He pointed out that nearly 90 per cent of the children in the county were not immune from these diseases.

A report of the recent state P.T.A. convention in Cleveland was given by Mrs J. B Weigel, Mrs. Conrad Zeigler, and Mrs. Don Rudolph, three of the 45 delegates to attend from Mansfield.

They reported that the North Central district, of which Mansfield is a part, again was given an award for obtaining the greatest number of members for 1937 and 1938.

Mrs. F. D. Boals, president of the council, introduced the candidates for election and re-election to the Mansfield board of education.

The next meeting of the council will be held Dec. 1 at John Simpson Junior high school.

HUNTER REPLIES TO REPUBLICANS

'My Platform Is Based Upon My Personal Record,' He Says at Prospect Rally.

platform of Glenn L. Bierly, Republican mayoralty candidate, as "the seven politician promises," Atty. Marshall C. Moore said "that procedure is the same the Republicans used in 1935 and that old platform now sounds as worn out as a Model T Ford."

"We all agree with the things promised in that so-called platform, but it is not the result of a desire to provide a sincere program for the voters. The seven politician promises worked for the Republicans in 1935 but they won't work this year because the promises were not kept," he declared

Charges G. O. P. Failure.

Turning to the G. O. P. suggestion that a traffic expert make a survey of the problem in the city, Moore asserted that "the present administration has tried this and that and now apparently admits failure at finding a solution to the traffic problem. They suggest again the employment of an expert. That is not the answer. The solution is in a common sense study by citizens of this community who, with the help of a Democratic administration, can work out a solution without the expense of experts."

Moore again charged Bierly with inconsistency for voting for the Mansfield conservancy project while a member of council and then advocating that bond issues be submitted for a vote of the people. He quoted figures to show that more than $232,000 has been spent on the conservancy plan, "with only $1,873 of that amount going for actual flood prevention."

Calling the town forum idea impractical for a city of Mansfield's size, because "the meetings soon are monopolized by a select group of active politicians," Moore attacked Bierlyl's recommendation for a return to the cracker barrel and town meeting.

"It's the same old hooey that's been handed out since the days of ancient Egypt," he said.

John F. Correll, president of the Young Democratic club, denied that Democrats are conducting a "smear campaign" as charged by Bierly. After going into a detailed analysis of the meaning of the term "mud slinging," Correll accused the Republicans of "deliberately trying to attach the stigma of mud slinging tactics to the Democratic party."

"Mud slinging has no place in this campaign," he said, "and we are only performing the duty of supplying the data to people on which they are going to make their decision in this election."

Declaring that "Mr. Bierly cannot deny the charges made by Democrats in this campaign," Correll added that "he (Bierly) has not endorsed the present administration, neither has he repudiated it. He knows his cause would be completely lost if he upheld it, and if he repudiates it, he repudiates himself, for he is tied to the McFarland regime."

William N Fenn, candidate for council in the First ward, was chairman of the meeting, which was sponsored by the Dolly Madison club. Mrs. Emma Young, president of the club, opened the rally with a brief greeting to the candidates and First ward voters.

Thomas J. Davis, Cleveland, president of the Ohio State Democratic league, will speak at a rally of the Colored Democratic club and the Hunter-for-Mayor club tonight at Tillman's hall. The candidates will be introduced

Towns In Richland Area Wind Up Election Drives

HOT FIGHTS ON IN CRAWFORD COUNTY RACES

Galion Has 4 In Mayoralty Contest, Bucyrus Scene of Vote Battle.

Candidates for municipal offices in six towns of the Richland county area today prepared to make their final bid for votes at the election next Tuesday.

Spirited vote drives have been staged in some communities and in others reports indicate a lack of interest. One town, Crestline, is without a contest on its municipal ticket. Only two tax levies and township offices are to be decided upon.

Mt. Gilead, in Morrow county had four candidates for mayor in ts top political race. Galion in Crawford county, has a similar number in the field.

Bucyrus, Crawford county seat, has a former state examiner and present service director competing in the mayoralty race with other hot fights up for decision Tuesday.

At Crestline, the withdrawal of Edward C. King, Republican candidate, leaves L. F. Waldbauer, Democrat, unopposed for the mayor's chair. Waldbauer previously served four terms as mayor.

So far, little interest has been shown in the Ashland and Millersburg campaigns, but leaders indicate there may be greater activity in the "home stretch."

A summary of the campaigns in each of the districts is given below:

4 In Galion's Mayoralty Contest.

GALION—With four candidates in the mayoralty race Galion's fall election promises to be an interesting one.

In the mayoralty race are: W. M. King, Republican incumbent seeking a third term; H. H. Hartman, Democratic candidate who is seeking a tenth term; Jack Graham and Oscar Williams on the Independent ticket. For president of council are: G. M. Badgley, Republican, now serving as councilman-at-large; Homer Simpson, Democrat; and C. E. Yarian, Independent.

Daniel Kreiter, Democrat, is unopposed for city treasurer. City solicitor, George H. Davies, Democrat, and Matt Mossbacher, Republican Councilman-at-large, three to be elected, F. E. Cook, Republican; Arthur A. Connor, W. H. Kunkel, incumbent, and Harry L. Volk, incumbent, all Democratic candidates.

For members of council: first ward, Otho Cronenwett, Democrat, and Lester Tupps, Republican incumbent; second ward, no contest, Lawrence Neumann, Democratic incumbent; third ward, J. Benn Romine, Democrat, Democrat, and V. A. Butts, Independent, fourth ward, Shelby Burden, Democrat, and Thomas Maidens, Republican incumbent.

In the city board of education race are: Harry W. Sanderlin, now serving as clerk; Dr. P. A. Murr, president incumbent; Franklin J. Craum and Ivan L. Cass. Two members are to be elected for four-year terms.

Citizens will also vote on a 2½-mill tax levy for a period of five years to be used for current expenses of the Galion school district.

Bucyrus Closing Spirited Campaign.

BUCYRUS — One of the most spirited city campaigns in many years is being brought to a close this week with scattered precinct meetings about the city.

With the exception of city solicitor and one councilman-at-large, Republicans have a full ticket. Democrats are offering their party a full ticket which carries the names of five candidates, not holding city offices in this Democratic administration.

"An administration free from all political alliances and promises, that may conscieniously and impartially serve all of the people of the city," is the platform on which the Republican candidate for mayor, George Dustman, former Ohio state examiner, has conducted his campaign.

The Democratic candidate, R. L. Hertzer, incumbent service director, has included in his platform economy in city operation, public improvements and economic distribution of public funds.

Following is the complete list of candidates whose names will appear on the ballots.

Democratic ticket: mayor, R. L. Hertzer; president of council, William Reimemeyer; treasurer, Esther Dobbins; city solicitor, John Carroll; councilman-at-large, Walter Michael, Chester Sharrock and Larry Schwein; first ward councilman, H. J. Carle; second ward, D. F. Flohr, third ward, E. A. Didie and fourth ward, Luther Kinnett.

Republican: mayor, George Dustman; president of council, J. W. Loomis; treasurer, Mrs. Laetitia Sharer; councilman-at-large, Foster Corfman and Fred Klein; first ward councilman, H. M. Kurtz; second ward, W. E. Durr; third ward, L. B. Thompson and fourth ward, S. L. Powers.

Crestline Without Election Contests.

CRESTLINE—Except for two tax levies and township officers, Crestline voters might just as well stay at home on election day. No contests are on the ticket for municipal offices.

Edward C. King, local attorney who won the Republican nomination for mayor, withdrew from the race on Oct. 6.

His withdrawal left a clear field for L. F. Waldbauer, Democrat, who seeks election for a fifth term.

Miss Marie Schill, present incumbent, is unopposed in seeking re-election as city clerk on the Democratic ticket and Albert P. Conner, also unopposed on the same ticket, will undoubtedly be Crestline's next city treasurer.

Six names appear on the Democratic side of the ballot with six to be elected, for member of city council; two new members in the field, Henry Gresmer and Robert Lesseuer, headed the list at the August primary. Others who seek re-election are W. H. Hoffman, C. W. Kindinger, George Glauer and Howard Foltz.

Three members of the board of trustees of public affairs now serving on the Democratic ticket and up for re-election are John H Eichler, Peter Hoag and Harold L. Ryan.

Crestline voters are asked to vote on a three-mill tax levy for operating expenses of Crestline exempted village school district and a two-mill tax levy for the benefit of the village of Crestline, both outside the ten-mill limitation.

In the Crestline school district for the office of member of the board of education are the names of F. M. Teeter, T. A. Cox, V. V. DeJean, all unopposed.

Candidates for office in Jackson township with contests for the offices of trustee and clerk, are as follows; trustees, four years, Z. O. Roop (D.), Sherman J. Brown (D.), H. E. Sutter (D.), trustees, two years, J. I. Will (R.), J. J. Metzger (D.); clerk, E. J. Nungesser, Paul Emmer; justice of the peace, C. Edward Ryan; constable, L. M. Reister.

4 In Mt. Gilead's Mayoralty Contest.

MT GILEAD—With the exception of the four-way contest for mayor, little interest is apparent in the off-year election and political observers are predicting the lightest vote in years.

All candidates are running on non-partisan tickets and no political meetings are scheduled for the week-end.

Candidates for mayore are: J. P. Bennett, Gilead township justice of the peace; Alvin Spriggs, former candidate for a council post; John W. Glauner, retired banker and former Morrow county probate judge, and Attorney Walter Dressel. Spriggs and Bennett are also candidates for justice of the peace.

Frank Gruber, former president o. the village council, who succeeded the late H. C. Little as mayor in March is not a candidate.

Fourteen candidates are seeking council posts, including all members of the present body, but none have conducted an active campaign.

Other contested municipal offices are that of clerk where H. C. Hair, incumbent, is opposed by John McAnall. Hair is seeking a third term while McAnall is running for office for the first time.

J. W. England, marshal, is opposed by Howard Watkins while John Cook, village treasurer is unopposed for re-election.

Ashland Candidates In Quiet Campaign.

ASHLAND—A quiet municipal election is in the offing for Ashland if campaign activity is any indication. The campaign so far has been without oratory and most candidates are confining their efforts to door to door vote solicitations.

W. Art Mason, incumbent, and Newton Mansfield are in the race for mayor, Lotta Westover, incumbent, and Josephine B. Stookey for director of finance and public records; Ray Koontz and T. E. Shimm seek the one post as councilman-at-large.

George P. Gongwer, law director, and C. W. Chorpening, police judge, have no opposition.

There are contests in all of the city's four ward council posts.

Light Vote Seen For Millersburg.

MILLERSBURG—If the low ebb of pre-election interest among residents is any indication of a light vote, Millersburg and Holmes county will experience the lightest vote in years next Tuesday.

Candidates are:

Mayor, Robert Hallam (D), incumbent, and D. Frank Miller (R).

Clerk, Sam Franks, jr. (D.), incumbent, and none for (R.).

Treasurer, William F. Grassle (D.), unopposed.

Marshal, Roy C. Frederick (D.).

Council, John Fisher (D.), Horace Maxwell (R.), Jacob Hudson (R), all incumbents, R. E. Marchand (D.), Floyd L. Reese (D.), Charles Shoup (D.) and Glendon F. Uhl (D.).

Board of public affairs, David Franks (D), Scott V. Mast (D.), and Louis Miley (D.), all incumbents and Charles E. Marvin (R.).

Justice of the peace, J. K. Snyder (D.), incumbent, and Wayne Stilwell (D.).

Constable, Charles Everhart (D) and Dr. W. C. Swaggard (R.), both incumbents.

Board of education, Harold Burns and Wiley Work, both incumbents.

STATE JOBS OF 700 MENACED IN FUND SHORTAGE

Tax Commission Reports Curb In Program Necessary Until New Appropriation.

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—Seven hundred employes of the state tax commission will be laid off during December unless an emergency appropriation of $100,000 is forthcoming from the special session of the legislature.

Walter Mitchell, member of the tax commission, said that 450 workers in several of the tax sections will be dropped from the payroll Nov. 1 unless the board of control permits an emergency transfer from the commission's "cushion" fund

Fund Nearly Gone.

The "cushion" fund of $150,000 was provided by the legislature to meet emergency needs of the commission. About $106,000 remains If that amount is approved for expenditure by the control board, employes will hold their jobs until Dec. 1. If not, at least 450 of them wil be laid off Nov. 1, it was stated.

Even though the entire $106,000 remaining in the "cushion" fund is allocated, the commission will be short at least $100,000 and will be forced to suspend many of its activities during the last month of the year, Mitchell said

Shortages of salaries in the sales, use, utility and excise tax sections will necessitate a complete shutdown of these phases of the commission's work, it was claimed.

Lack of funds for traveling expenses, rentals, and office supplies as well as a shortage for salaries also will cause layoffs in other tax divisions, the commissioner said.

PROPOSES NEW COURT POLICY

Senator Would Have Infirm, Incompetent Judges Ousted Through Clause.

WASHINGTON— (AP) —Senator Logan (D.-Ky.) of the senate subcommittee investigating methods of judicial reform, has proposed that infirm and incompetent judges be removed by a special court acting under the "good behavior" clause of the constitution.

Logan said his plan could be put into effect without a constitutional amendment. He added that he would present it to the subcommittee when it meets here early next month.

The Kentucky senator, a leader in the fight for the president's court bill at the last session of congress, said he believed his plan would make it "entirely unnecessary to revive the controversy over the judiciary." Logan declared himself opposed to a constitutional amendment providing for compulsory retirement of federal judges at 70 or 75.

Under the constitution judges hold office during "good behavior." Logan advanced the theory that "good behavior" could be construed to mean competence in office, on the ground that when a judge became too old, or when his facilities were impaired, he could no longer perform his duties competently.

Calmness Urged To Escape High Blood Pressure

HARTFORD, Conn.—(INS)—Be as calm as a Chinaman if you want to escape high blood pressure.

This is the advice of Dr. Timothy F. Brewer, speaking under the auspices of the Harford Medical society.

Describing the type of person who either has high blood pressure or who is going to get it, Dr. Brewer declared:

"They have got to learn to relax and be calm more often. They must not get excited so frequently They should strive to be like the Chinese who never have high blood pressure. The thought naturally arises, if we would prevent high blood pressure, be as the Chinese."

Dr. Brewer revealed that heart disease caused by high blood pressure is the most common form of heart trouble during the middle life and that about 70,000 people in the United States die each year from heart failure caused by high blood pressure.

STOCKMEN ORGANIZE VIGILANTE COMMITTEE TO FIGHT RUSTLERS

DENVER — (INS) — Shadows of the rip, roaring old west where six guns were law and where cattle rustlers were hanged in the nearest tree when caught appeared in modern form here recently as hundreds of stockmen and sheriffs of Colorado banded together in a sort of vigilante committee. They will attempt to stem the increasing thefts of stock by modern cattle rustlers who have employed trucks in their nefarious trade.

The present drive, however, far exceeds any other concerted effort produced in Colorado. But stockmen so far have been able only to offer the same methods used against rustlers in the old days—posting of rewards and stock branding.

The enraged stockmen, meeting in the state capital building, set up a set of resolutions that called for (1) Non-forgable bills-of-sale; (2) Records being kept of all trucks hauling livestock; (3) Reports of livestock law infringements; (4) posting of bonds by butchers and merchants.

No official estimate of the loss to stockmen caused by rustling was given, but it was known to run into thousands of dollars annually.

Time will tell the effectiveness of modern police methods against the rustlers as compared to the old "track 'em down on horseback, hang 'em and leave 'em" methods which legends tell were so effective.

STATES JOIN TO TRAP FUGITIVES

Ohio, Indiana and Michigan to Establish 'Blockade' In Joint War on Crime.

COLDWATER, Mich.— (U.P.) — Law enforcement officers of northern Ohio, northern Indiana and southern Michigan are joined in a "criminal blockade" system in which vigilantes will be employed to prevent the flight of criminals across state lines

The new system was approved at a meeting of more than 60 state police, sheriffs and municipal police officials.

First move in the program will be the appointment by Sheriff Homer Burns of Branch county, Mich., of 24 vigilantes who will be subject to call 24 hours a day. Sheriffs in other counties on both sides of the common border separating the three states were expected to set up similar organizations.

Lieut. Van A. Loomis of the Michigan state police, who conceived the blockade system, explained that it was designed to:

1. Strengthen the co-operative efforts of law enforcement officials in the three states.

2. Provide a more effective means of preventing the escape of bank baudits and other criminals who attempt to flee across state lines.

3. Expedite the dispatch of police cars in pursuit of "interstate criminals."

Lone Chinese Battalion Defies Jap 'Mop-Up' Drive

KEEPS CHINA'S COLORS FLYING OVER CHAPEI

U. S. Marines In Danger as Japan Maps Plan to Rout Doomed Regiment.

SHANGHAI—(AP)— The single defiant flag of a doomed—but yet fighting—Chinese battalion still fluttered over Chapei tonight in the midst of scores of Japan's rising sun banners.

While the main battleground had shifted to Shanghai's western environs with the Chinese retreat from Chapei yesterday, the lone Chinese force held out tonight in warehouses along Soochow Creek, adjoining the international settlement's northern border.

That the final hour of the doomed battalion was at hand seemed certain when a Japanese navy spokesman declared Nippon's bluejackets would mop up all scattered Chinese units in Chapei.

Warns Marines.

Japanese naval headquarters advised United States marines to take precautionary measures against possible severe action to wipe out the Chinese battalion, opposite one section of marine defense lines.

Designating the Chinese detachment as stragglers, the navy spokesman predicted they soon would be killed.

Crowds of hero-worshipping Chinese declared they were not stragglers, but the remains of a battalion of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's eighty-eighth army which had held the north station Citadel 75 days against Japanese attacks.

Proud Chinese officials said the besieged warriors all were under 30 years of age and came from every province in China.

"They are fully representative of heroic China's new fighting spirit," said one.

Have Food Supply.

Somehow, the unit obtained supplies of rice, hardtack and tea and sent back word that it would stick to the last man.

Despite a shower of machine gun bullets which spattered the settlement pavements, crowds of Chinese and foreigners gathered on the rooftops of nearby buildings to see the battle to the end in the heart of a modern city.

As a precaution against casualties, police roped off three blocks inside the settlement, within a block of busy Nanking road. Three Chinese were struck by stray bullets.

As the Chapei struggle apparently approached a climax, death and destruction on a grander scale continued beyond the settlement's borders.

Duke and Duchess To Tour Flimland, Florida Resorts

PARIS—(AP)—The Duke and Duchess of Windsor are planning a double swing across the United States, from New York to Hollywood and back to Miami, a close associate disclosed today.

They will travel with about 70 trunks and a retinue of six persons, he explained. The westward trip would take the former British monarch and his American-born wife along a northern route while the eastward journey would be through the south.

This member of the duke's suite emphasized that the exact itinerary of the five-week tour was still under discussion. The duke and duchess will sail Nov. 6 on the liner Bremen.

After arrival in Florida they planned to visit a Caribbean island not yet decided upon. A friend of the couple said Washington and Pittsburgh already were on the list of places likely to be visited. Windsor's associate added that some industrial areas of New England were almost certain to be included.

Mrs. F. D. Boals, president of the Mansfield P.T.A. council, wasn't so sure yesterday that she likes the habit some sons have of wanting to save their mothers worry—at least not in her case. Informed that her son, David, a student at Washington and Lee university, had recently submitted to a major operation and is now well on the way to recovery, Mrs. Boals left immediately for Lexington, Va., where the school is located. Despite her son's assurance that he was all right and she needn't worry, she wants to see him just to make sure, she said.

One of the waitresses at a Fourth street restaurant is a lot wiser about turkeys today. Going into the kitchen she watched with interest how the chef dressed a turkey. The only thing which puzzled her, she said, was how a "little turkey could have such a big liver," pointing to a calf liver, which weighed five pounds. After some explanation she learned more about turkeys.

John Pierce (Charles Hoffman company) is one of those natural poets who is inspired to rhyme by misfortune. When he went out last night and found his car all marked up with soap, he sat right down—well, not literally but figuratively—and turned out this brief epic: "He may spring from a monkey. But he didn't spring so far—Who runs around with a cake of soap, A-marking up my car."

SILENT ON BOOS

Japan's Goodwill Envoys In U. S. Rescued From Mob.

SAN FRANCISCO — (U.P.) — Japan's goodwill mission, sent out to explain to the world about the warfare in China, proceeded without comment today after being rescued from a screaming, booing crowd on the San Francisco waterfront, the first port of call after leaving the homeland.

For two hours last night the five Japanese—scholars, industrialists, publicists and diplomats—were besieged aboard their ship while the crowd of 600 waged its anti-Japanese demonstration.

"Boycott Japanese goods," the crowd shouted, and "remember the Shanghai murders."

Finally the crowd rushed the police lines. Police grappled with the attackers, swung their clubs and arrested six suspected ringleaders.

GLITTERING NEW MODELS AWE NATIONAL AUTO SHOW CROWDS

NEW YORK—(AP)—The 1938 national automobile show went into high today with all the glitter of a Christmas tree—and with spectators as pleased as kids with new toys.

Grand Central Palace was the focal point and officials predicted greater attendance records than last year.

The machines, making a play primarily to the eye, were exhibited in almost every conceivable fashion.

Motors had glass walls so you could see what made them tick; some cars were cut in half; bodies were exhibited in "before and after" phases to show how they looked in rough and finished form; motors were kept running and chassis revolving so the patrons could see every nut and bolt.

But the spectators weren't interested primarily in mechanics.

They crawled in cars and jiggled on seats to see how the springs worked, fiddled with newer and more gaudy gadgets on dashes, opened trunks, ran fingers over chrome and stood off and gazed in respectful awe at the flowing sweep of body contours.

Motor company executives were confident the new models were as pleasing in appearance, as efficient and as safe as their engineers could make them.

Three new types of automatic gear-shifting devices were shown among the machines which included one—the Waterman Arrowbile—that either flies or travels on land. It had collapsible wings and was power at the rear with a pusher propeller.

Good news came to the manufacturers from the American petroleum committee which predicted that every third family of the 30,000,000 in the United States would have bought a new or used automobile this year.

The show opened yesterday to run a week.

ELYRIA —(AP)— Dr. Reuben Strauss, Cleveland pathologist, who examined the body of Louise Hornbeck, slain Oct. 18 at nearby Grafton, said today his report probably would not be ready before Tuesday.

The girl's body was exhumed yesterday at Mount Victory, O., in Hardin county, for the examination by Dr. Strauss.

DIE IN FLOOD

Dozens of bodies were recovered by troops and police from Damascus. One hundred persons were missing.

HOLDS GERMAN EXPANSION KEY PEACE FACTOR

Mussolini, Urging Insurgent Victory In Spain, Demands End for Bolshevism.

ROME— (U.P.) —Premier Benito Mussolini, addressing a gigantic gathering of his fascist blackshirts, said today that Bolshevism must be driven out of Europe and Germany must be given colonies if peace is to be saved.

The occasion of the speech was the 15th anniversary of the fascist march on Rome, which marked the accession to power of the first "20th century government."

Two hundred thousand men, jammed into the Olympic stadium, and 500,000 persons massed on Monte Mario overlooking it, heard the speech.

So also did delegations from nationalist Spain and nazi Germany, first official delegations ever invited to this essentially fascist observance.

Nationalists 'Must Win.'

Mussolini spoke to and for both delegations. By stamping bolshevism from Europe, he meant that the nationalists must win the Spanish civil war. In his reference to colonies, he supported the growing cry that nazi Germany must expand peacefully or otherwise.

Thus, on this solemn fascist anniversary, Mussolini made it a sort of "Rome-Berlin-Salamanca" axis, on the joint program of anti-bolshevism and expansion of the "have not" nations.

"The motto of the 16th fascist year is peace," shouted Mussolini. "There has been much use and abuse of this word by the bleating of the so-called reactionary democrats. But when it comes from our lips—the lips of those who have fought and who are ready to fight again—this word attains its real, solemn, original, human definition. Because to obtain a durable, lasting peace it is necessary to eliminate bolshevism from Europe. It is necessary that some absurd clauses of the treaties of peace be revised. It is necessary that great peoples like the German people have again the place to which they are entitled, which they once had, under the African sun."

The presence of the official nazi delegation, led by Rudolph Hess, deputy leader of the party, demonstrated "the ever closer political bond uniting the two people," Mussolini said.

WEST VIRGINIA STREAMS RISING

Weston Streets Covered As Heavy Rains Fill Creeks.

WESTON, W. Va —(AP)—Floodwaters of West Fork river swept lowlying streets of this city of 10,000 today as steady rains throughout the central West Virginia area sent streams surging out of their banks.

Route 19, from Clarksburg to Weston, was under water at nearby Haleville and motorists were forced to detour by the way of Berlin, Lewis county.

More than an inch of rain fell in Clarksburg yesterday and the West Fork was reported rising steadily there. At Fairmont, 25 miles below Clarksburg, the Monongahela river was creeping up at two-tenths of a foot an hour.

JAIL DESTROYED

Transient Rescued But Blaze Burns Up Fire Truck.

NEWARK —(U.P.)— A new fire truck and other fire-fighting equipment were destroyed when the jail and fire department at nearby Hanover, O., burned last night.

John Ward, 61, a transient who requested a night's lodging at the jail, was rescued by volunteer firemen. Authorities believed the fire may have been started as a Halloween prank.

The Great Game of Politics

—By FRANK R. KENT

The Chinese Tried It In 1068.

THE MAIN purpose of the extra session of congress, as outlined by Mr. Roosevelt, is to pass two measures for which he conceives he has a "mandate" from the people, though extremely few people thought they were giving such a mandate when they voted for him last year.

One of these bills is known as the wage-and-hour-control bill. Under it, if the administration has its way, another labor board dominated by the president will be created. To it power of an extraordinary kind will be delegated. By it practical control over industry both as to prices and production can be achieved. The other bill is known as the crop-control bill. Under it, if present plans eventuate, an inconceivably complicated governmental bureau will be established which will regulate all farms and every farmer; which will have power to punish as well as to reward and which will distribute annually—so long as it lasts—some five hundred millions of the people's dollars.

THOSE ARE the two basic ideas in the Roosevelt mind. They involve governmental control of industry for the benefit of labor and governmental control of agriculture for the benefit of the farmer. From the beginning these two classes have been the chief New Deal concern. It has been the dream of the New Deal strategists to weld the farmers and laborers into an invincible political alliance, and Mr. Roosevelt has catered to them as has no other president. The impression has been created that this effort to carry the "More Abundant Life" to the farmer and laborer is an original Roosevelt invention, an inspired idea, one of those great thoughts which come to great minds.

THERE IS NO hint that this idea of benefiting the farmer and laborer through governmental control of prices, wages and production and the distribution of subsidies is nearly a thousand years old: that it has been tried not once but many times, that it never has worked and, in the long run, the very classes which it is designed to serve, suffer most from it. Now that the session called by Mr. Roosevelt for the purpose of putting this ancient and discredited scheme upon the statute books for yet another trial is about to open, it may be of interest to quote from a particularly significant book—"An Outline History of China," by Herbert H. Gowan and Josef Washington Hall, published by the Century Company in 1934. In describing Chinese conditions in the year A. D. 1068, there are passages which it is impossible not to appy to the present program of the present president.

"FOR MANY YEARS," this history says, "the opposition between Wang An-shih and the historian Szu-ma Kuang divided China into two great political camps. The former thought it his mission to change and regenerate; the latter was equally earnest in resisting the torrent, and appealed to the traditions of the past and the generally conservative spirit of the race. The dispute grew more and more embittered until the accession of Shen Tsung gave Wang an opportunity to put his theories into practice. His main principle was the duty of the emperor to provide for all his people the opportunity to procure the necessaries of life. 'The state,' he said, 'should take over the management of commerce, industry and agriculture, with a view to succoring the working classes and preventing them from being ground into the dust by the rich.' He caused the establishments of tribunals to regulate the daily wage of the laborer and the daily price of merchandise.

"THE SOIL was divided into equal areas, graded according to fertility, in order that theme might he a new basis for taxation. The produce of the land was used, first, for the payment of taxes; secondly, for the needs of the district in which it was produced, and, thirdly, for sale to the government of the remainder at as cheap a rate as practicable to await an increase in value, or to supply the needs of other districts. The taxes were to be provided by the rich, and the poor were to be exempt. Large reserves of money were to be kept by the state to provide pensions for the aged, support for the unemployed and help for the needy generally.

"OTHER TRIBUNALS were established for the distribution of seed for sowing on the waste lands. These were to be cultivated by those who had no other work. Wang An-shih had many other ideas, especially interesting to us in these days, but to all appearances his theories were untimely for, after ten years' experience, the nation decided upon an entire reversal of policy."

This extract from an authoritative source speaks for itself. It isn't necessary to gild this lily.

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—"Lancer Spy"—and don't let the title dismiss it for you as just another spy story—introduces Actor Gregory Ratoff as an interesting technician behind the camera. Much that sets the picture above the average of its type is due to Ratoff's smooth and straight-to-the-point direction.

Ratoff is a dialect comedian, but in his direction he speaks a fluid, clear language. Except at the beginning (which may be cut profitably) he keeps things moving. Here he is impeded by the necessity for frequent subtitles indicating change of locale. After that, "Lancer Spy" gets under way and keeps its pace.

The rest of the credit, in major share, belongs to George Sanders, a fairly new actor, here introduced as full-fledged hero for the first time. (You may recall the foppish heavy he played in "Lloyd's of London.") As the Englishman assuming the role of an escaped German prisoner and seeking war secrets in the very heart of Berlin, he commands attention with personable character, fine appearance, acting skill and voice.

Dolores del Rio brings beauty to her somewhat sketchy heroine incredible, role, and there is a corking performance by Joseph Schildkraut, with Peter Lorre, Maurice Moscovitch, Sig Rumann and Lionel Atwill among others who impress.

* * *

Brian Aherne was impressive for vigor and force on the stage in "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," but in pictures his roles had seemed to me singularly colorless until "The Great Garrick" came along this week.

Here is a beautiful comedy, in which Aherne is superb as the great English actor upsetting plans of the French national theater to make a monkey of him. Wise to the plot, Garrick turns the tables on the French players who take over an inn and impersonate the staff, with hilarious results they did not entirely expect. Olivia de Havilland, as the girl Garrick thought was play-acting too, is lovelier to look at than ever, and a better actress as well. Against such comic competition as Edward Everett Horton and Luis Alberni, whose impersonation of a madman is something to howl at, the diminutive Etienne Girardot practically steals the show. It's a Mervyn LeRoy production from Ernst Vajda's screen play.

* * *

Another comedy hit is "The Perfect Specimen," based—like "It Happened One Night"—on a story by Samuel Hopkins Adams. Errol Flynn is the perfect one, so treated by rich Granny May Robson in the seclusion of her vast estate. Flip Joan Blondell crashes through the fence, and awakens perfect Errol to more than a passing interest in the outside world. He escapes, joins Joan, and together they have a string of amusing adventures while falling in love, and while Granny calls out a nation-wide search for his "kidnapers."

Flynn is light, handsome and easy in the role. Joan is bright, and Allen Jenkins, Edward Everett Horton, and Hugh Herbert get their usual audience approval.

Like "It Happened One Night," this one travels around the countryside in telling its story and also reaches its climax in a peppery denouement.

MANSFIELD, OHIO — THURSDAY, OCTOBER 28, 1937

DEATH IN SKY—On heels of giant airliner crash on Utah peak came this one at Tacoma, Wash., with three more deaths.

Lone Chinese Battalion Defies Jap 'Mop-Up' Drive

KEEPS CHINA'S COLORS FLYING OVER CHAPEI

U. S. Marines In Danger as Japan Maps Plan to Rout Doomed Regiment.

SHANGHAI—(AP)— The single defiant flag of a doomed—but yet fighting—Chinese battalion still fluttered over Chapei tonight in the midst of scores of Japan's rising sun banners.

While the main battleground had shifted to Shanghai's western environs with the Chinese retreat from Chapei yesterday, the lone Chinese force held out tonight in warehouses along Soochow Creek, adjoining the international settlement's northern border.

That the final hour of the doomed battalion was at hand seemed certain when a Japanese navy spokesman declared Nippon's bluejackets would mop up all scattered Chinese units in Chapei.

Warns Marines.

Japanese naval headquarters advised United States marines to take precautionary measures against possible severe action to wipe out the Chinese battalion, opposite one section of marine defense lines.

Designating the Chinese detachment as stragglers, the navy spokesman predicted they soon would be killed.

Crowds of hero-worshipping Chinese declared they were not stragglers, but the remains of a battalion of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's eighty-eighth army which had held the north station Citadel 75 days against Japanese attacks.

Proud Chinese officials said the besieged warriors all were under 30 years of age and came from every province in China.

"They are fully representative of heroic China's new fighting spirit," said one.

Have Food Supply.

Somehow, the unit obtained supplies of rice, hardtack and tea and sent back word that it would stick to the last man.

Despite a shower of machine gun bullets which spattered the settlement pavements, crowds of Chinese and foreigners gathered on the rooftops of nearby buildings to see the battle to the end in the heart of a modern city.

As a precaution against casualties, police roped off three blocks inside the settlement, within a block of busy Nanking road. Three Chinese were struck by stray bullets.

As the Chapei struggle apparently approached a climax, death and destruction on a grander scale continued beyond the settlement's borders.

Duke and Duchess To Tour Flimland, Florida Resorts

PARIS—(AP)—The Duke and Duchess of Windsor are planning a double swing across the United States, from New York to Hollywood and back to Miami, a close associate disclosed today.

They will travel with about 70 trunks and a retinue of six persons, he explained. The westward trip would take the former British monarch and his American-born wife along a northern route while the eastward journey would be through the south.

This member of the duke's suite emphasized that the exact itinerary of the five-week tour was still under discussion. The duke and duchess will sail Nov. 6 on the liner Bremen.

After arrival in Florida they planned to visit a Caribbean island not yet decided upon. A friend of the couple said Washington and Pittsburgh already were on the list of places likely to be visited. Windsor's associate added that some industrial areas of New England were almost certain to be included.

Mrs. F. D. Boals, president of the Mansfield P.T.A. council, wasn't so sure yesterday that she likes the habit some sons have of wanting to save their mothers worry—at least not in her case. Informed that her son, David, a student at Washington and Lee university, had recently submitted to a major operation and is now well on the way to recovery, Mrs. Boals left immediately for Lexington, Va., where the school is located. Despite her son's assurance that he was all right and she needn't worry, she wants to see him just to make sure, she said.

One of the waitresses at a Fourth street restaurant is a lot wiser about turkeys today. Going into the kitchen she watched with interest how the chef dressed a turkey. The only thing which puzzled her, she said, was how a "little turkey could have such a big liver," pointing to a calf liver, which weighed five pounds. After some explanation she learned more about turkeys.

John Pierce (Charles Hoffman company) is one of those natural poets who is inspired to rhyme by misfortune. When he went out last night and found his car all marked up with soap, he sat right down—well, not literally but figuratively—and turned out this brief epic: "He may spring from a monkey. But he didn't spring so far—Who runs around with a cake of soap, A-marking up my car."

SILENT ON BOOS

Japan's Goodwill Envoys In U. S. Rescued From Mob.

SAN FRANCISCO — (U.P.) — Japan's goodwill mission, sent out to explain to the world about the warfare in China, proceeded without comment today after being rescued from a screaming, booing crowd on the San Francisco waterfront, the first port of call after leaving the homeland.

For two hours last night the five Japanese—scholars, industrialists, publicists and diplomats—were besieged aboard their ship while the crowd of 600 waged its anti-Japanese demonstration.

"Boycott Japanese goods," the crowd shouted, and "remember the Shanghai murders."

Finally the crowd rushed the police lines. Police grappled with the attackers, swung their clubs and arrested six suspected ringleaders.

GLITTERING NEW MODELS AWE NATIONAL AUTO SHOW CROWDS

NEW YORK—(AP)—The 1938 national automobile show went into high today with all the glitter of a Christmas tree—and with spectators as pleased as kids with new toys.

Grand Central Palace was the focal point and officials predicted greater attendance records than last year.

The machines, making a play primarily to the eye, were exhibited in almost every conceivable fashion.

Motors had glass walls so you could see what made them tick; some cars were cut in half; bodies were exhibited in "before and after" phases to show how they looked in rough and finished form; motors were kept running and chassis revolving so the patrons could see every nut and bolt.

But the spectators weren't interested primarily in mechanics.

They crawled in cars and jiggled on seats to see how the springs worked, fiddled with newer and more gaudy gadgets on dashes, opened trunks, ran fingers over chrome and stood off and gazed in respectful awe at the flowing sweep of body contours.

Motor company executives were confident the new models were as pleasing in appearance, as efficient and as safe as their engineers could make them.

Three new types of automatic gear-shifting devices were shown among the machines which included one—the Waterman Arrowbile—that either flies or travels on land. It had collapsible wings and was power at the rear with a pusher propeller.

Good news came to the manufacturers from the American petroleum committee which predicted that every third family of the 30,000,000 in the United States would have bought a new or used automobile this year.

The show opened yesterday to run a week.

STUDIES CASE

Pathologist Examines Exhumed Body of Slain Grafton Girl.

ELYRIA —(AP)— Dr Reuben Strauss, Cleveland pathologist, who examined the body of Louise Hornbeck, slain Oct. 18 at nearby Grafton, said today his report probably would not be ready before Tuesday.

The girl's body was exhumed yesterday at Mount Victory, O., in Hardin county, for the examination by Dr. Strauss.

DIE IN FLOOD

DAMASCUS, Syria — (AP) — A great flood rushed down from the hills northeast of Damascus and swept through the town of Dmeir where almost all the houses were washed away.

Dozens of bodies were recovered by troops and police from Damascus. One hundred persons were missing.

HOLDS GERMAN EXPANSION KEY PEACE FACTOR

Mussolini, Urging Insurgent Victory In Spain, Demands End for Bolshevism.

ROME— (U.P.) —Premier Benito Mussolini, addressing a gigantic gathering of his fascist blackshirts, said today that Bolshevism must be driven out of Europe and Germany must be given colonies if peace is to be saved.

The occasion of the speech was the 15th anniversary of the fascist march on Rome, which marked the accession to power of the first "20th century government."

Two hundred thousand men, jammed into the Olympic stadium, and 500,000 persons massed on Monte Mario overlooking it, heard the speech.

So also did delegations from nationalist Spain and nazi Germany, first official delegations ever invited to this essentially fascist observance.

Nationalists 'Must Win.'

Mussolini spoke to and for both delegations. By stamping bolshevism from Europe, he meant that the nationalists must win the Spanish civil war. In his reference to colonies, he supported the growing cry that nazi Germany must expand peacefully or otherwise.

Thus, on this solemn fascist anniversary, Mussolini made it a sort of "Rome-Berlin-Salamanca" axis, on the joint program of anti-bolshevism and expansion of the "have not" nations

"The motto of the 16th fascist year is peace," shouted Mussolini. "There has been much use and abuse of this word by the bleating of the so-called reactionary democrats. But when it comes from our lips—the lips of those who have fought and who are ready to fight again—this word attains its real, solemn, original, human definition. Because to obtain a durable, lasting peace it is necessary to eliminate bolshevism from Europe. It is necessary that some absurd clauses of the treaties of peace be revised. It is necessary that great peoples like the German people have again the place to which they are entitled, which they once had, under the African sun."

The presence of the official nazi delegation, led by Rudolph Hess, deputy leader of the party, demonstrated "the ever closer political bond uniting the two people," Mussolini said.

SHARE HONORS

Wyandot, Fairfield Farmers Win State Husking Titles.

UPPER SANDUSKY — (AP) — Noble Goodman of Wyandot county, and Harold Oatney of Fairfield county, shared Ohio corn husking championships today, winners of 80-minute final events of the annual state contest.

Goodman, who stripped 2,346.6 net pounds of corn from standing stalks, and Oatney, who husked 1,329.1 pounds from the shock, won over 19 other entrants in each class at the Simpson farm adjoining the Wyandot county fair grounds here yesterday.

T. J. Feehan of Wood county husked 2,296.4 pounds of standing corn to place second and join Goodman as Ohio's entries in the national contest at Marshall, Mo., Nov. 4. There is no national shock husking contest.

WEST VIRGINIA STREAMS RISING

Weston Streets Covered As Heavy Rains Fill Creeks.

WESTON, W. Va.—(AP)—Floodwaters of West Fork river swept lowlying streets of this city of 10,000 today as steady rains throughout the central West Virginia area sent streams surging out of their banks.

Route 19, from Clarksburg to Weston, was under water at nearby Haleville and motorists were forced to detour by the way of Berlin, Lewis county.

More than an inch of rain fell in Clarksburg yesterday and the West Fork was reported rising steadily there. At Fairmont, 25 miles below Clarksburg, the Monongahela river was creeping up at two-tenths of a foot an hour.

JAIL DESTROYED

Transient Rescued But Blaze Burns Up Fire Truck.

NEWARK —(U.P.)— A new fire truck and other fire-fighting equipment were destroyed when the jail and fire department at nearby Hanover, O., burned last night.

John Ward, 64, a transient who requested a night's lodging at the jail, was rescued by volunteer firemen. Authorities believed the fire may have been started as a Halloween prank.

The Great Game of Politics

—By FRANK R. KENT

The Chinese Tried It In 1068.

THE MAIN purpose of the extra session of congress, as outlined by Mr. Roosevelt, is to pass two measures for which he conceives he has a "mandate" from the people, though extremely few people thought they were giving such a mandate when they voted for him last year.

One of these bills is known as the wage-and-hour-control bill. Under it, if the administration has its way, another labor board dominated by the president will be created. To it power of an extraordinary kind will be delegated. By it practical control over industry both as to prices and production can be achieved. The other bill is known as the crop-control bill. Under it, if present plans eventuate, an inconceivably complicated governmental bureau will be established which will regulate all farms and every farmer; which will have power to punish as well as to reward and which will distribute annually—so long as it lasts—some five hundred millions of the people's dollars.

THOSE ARE the two basic ideas in the Roosevelt mind. They involve governmental control of industry for the benefit of labor and governmental control of agriculture for the benefit of the farmer. From the beginning these two classes have been the chief New Deal concern. It has been the dream of the New Deal strategists to weld the farmers and laborers into an invincible political alliance, and Mr. Roosevelt has catered to them as has no other president. The impression has been created that this effort to carry the "More Abundant Life" to the farmer and laborer is an original Roosevelt invention, an inspired idea, one of those great thoughts which come to great minds.

THERE IS NO hint that this idea of benefiting the farmer and laborer through governmental control of prices, wages and production and the distribution of subsidies is nearly a thousand years old; that it has been tried not once but many times, that it never has worked and, in the long run, the very classes which it is designed to serve, suffer most from it. Now that the session called by Mr. Roosevelt for the purpose of putting this ancient and discredited scheme upon the statute books for yet another trial is about to open, it may be of interest to quote from a particularly significant book—"An Outline History of China," by Herbert H. Gowan and Josef Washington Hall, published by the Century Company in 1934. In describing Chinese conditions in the year A. D. 1068, there are passages which it is impossible not to apply to the present program of the present president.

"FOR MANY YEARS," this history says, "the opposition between Wang An-shih and the historian Szu-ma Kuang divided China into two great political camps. The former thought it his mission to change and regenerate; the latter was equally earnest in resisting the torrent, and appealed to the traditions of the past and the generally conservative spirit of the race. The dispute grew more and more embittered until the accession of Shen Tsung gave Wang an opportunity to put his theories into practice. His main principle was the duty of the emperor to provide for all his people the opportunity to procure the necessaries of life. 'The state,' he said, 'should take over the management of commerce, industry and agriculture, with a view to succoring the working classes and preventing them from being ground into the dust by the rich.' He caused the establishments of tribunals to regulate the daily wage of the laborer and the daily price of merchandise.

"THE SOIL was divided into equal areas, graded according to fertility, in order that theme might be a new basis for taxation. The produce of the land was used, first, for the payment of taxes; secondly, for the needs of the district in which it was produced, and, thirdly, for sale to the government of the remainder at as cheap a rate as practicable to await an increase in value, or to supply the needs of other districts. The taxes were to be provided by the rich, and the poor were to be exempt. Large reserves of money were to be kept by the state to provide pensions for the aged, support for the unemployed and help for the needy generally

"OTHER TRIBUNALS were established for the distribution of seed for sowing on the waste lands. These were to be cultivated by those who had no other work. Wang An-shih had many other ideas, especially interesting to us in these days, but to all appearances his theories were untimely for, after ten years' experience, the nation decided upon an entire reversal of policy."

This extract from an authoritative source speaks for itself. It isn't necessary to gild this lily.

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—"Lancer Spy"—and don't let the title dismiss it for you as just another spy story—introduces Actor Gregory Ratoff as an interesting technician behind the camera. Much that sets the picture above the average of its type is due to Ratoff's smooth and straight-to-the-point direction.

Ratoff is a dialect comedian, but in his direction he speaks a fluid, clear language. Except at the beginning (which may be cut profitably) he keeps things moving. Here he is impeded by the necessity for frequent subtitles indicating change of locale. After that, "Lancer Spy" gets under way and keeps its pace.

The rest of the credit, in major share, belongs to George Sanders, a fairly new actor, here introduced as full-fledged hero for the first time. (You may recall the foppish heavy he played in "Lloyd's of London.") As the Englishman assuming the role of an escaped German prisoner and seeking war secrets in the very heart of Berlin, he commands attention with personable character, fine appearance, acting skill and voice.

Dolores del Rio brings beauty to her somewhat sketchy, hence incredible, role, and there is a corking performance by Joseph Schildkraut, with Peter Lorre, Maurice Moscovitch, Sig Rumann and Lionel Atwill among others who impress.

* * *

Brian Aherne was impressive for vigor and force on the stage in "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," but in pictures his roles had seemed to me singularly colorless until "The Great Garrick" came along this week.

Here is a beautiful comedy, in which Aherne is superb as the great English actor upsetting plans of the French national theater to make a monkey of him. Wise to the plot, Garrick turns the tables on the French players who take over an inn and impersonate the staff, with hilarious results they did not entirely expect. Olivia de Havilland, as the girl Garrick thought was play-acting too, is lovelier to look at than ever, and a better actress as well. Against such comic competition as Edward Everett Horton and Luis Alberni, whose impersonation of a madman is something to howl at, the diminutive Etienne Girardot practically steals the show. It's a Mervyn LeRoy production from Ernst Vajda's screen play.

* * *

Another comedy hit is "The Perfect Specimen," based—like "It Happened One Night"—on a story by Samuel Hopkins Adams. Errol Flynn is the perfect one, so reared by rich Granny May Robson in the seclusion of her vast estate. Flip Joan Blondell crashes through the fence, and awakens perfect Errol to more than a passing interest in the outside world. He escapes, joins Joan, and together they have a string of amusing adventures while falling in love, and while Granny calls out a nation-wide search for his "kidnapers."

Flynn is light, handsome and easy in the role. Joan is bright, and Allen Jenkins, Edward Everett Horton, and Hugh Herbert get their usual audience approval.

Like "It Happened One Night," this one travels around the countryside in telling its story and also reaches its climax in a peppery denouement.

ARTIST SPEAKS TO THREE CITY CLUBS

Nomad, Wednesday Study and Travelers' Members Hear Karl S. Bolander, Columbus, Talk on Art and Happiness.

KARL S. BOLANDER, nationally-known Columbus artist, critic and lecturer, addressed members of the Nomad, Wednesday Study and Travelers' clubs at a joint luncheon meeting at the Womens Club yesterday.

Mrs. William M. Weldon presided at the meeting for which the hostesses were Mrs. Harry Cave and Miss Nellie Mecklem.

"Art as It Affects Our Everyday Happiness" was Mr. Bolander's topic. He stressed the importance of teaching handcraft to children and pointed out that by teaching them to use their hands, delinquency and crime might be decreased besides giving the child an appreciation which he will keep throughout his life.

The connection between art and the commercial world was brought out by showing how the design of the bottle or can which contained a product has a great deal to do with the sale.

Mr. Bolander illustrated his lecture with a number of pieces from his collection which he has gathered from all over the world.

The next meeting of the Nomad club will be Nov 10 at the home of Mrs. C. H. Keating, Sturges avenue.

Mrs. John L. Connors, Marion avenue, will be hostess to members of the Travelers' club Nov. 9.

The Wednesday Study club will be entertained at the home of Mrs. Ephraim Brown, Woodhill road, Nov. 10.

Parents Disapprove Of Match

By VIRGINIA LEE

I have written many times in this column about the young people who are in love and whose parents, either side, or both, object to the match. It is a difficult situation for the parents if they are convinced that the union is bound to be a disastrous one. If the young folk are opposed they are likely to get married secretly, feeling very noble and martyrlike.

That is the trouble with persecution or anything that resembles it. The persecuted ones usually are that much more determined to do as they wish, and the abuse adds a note of drama to the affair to make it doubly alluring.

Martyrs going nobly to torture or to the stake with singing and prayer are a touching picture, you know. So active opposition is usually unwise, no matter how the parents feel.

It seems to me sometimes that even to express disapprobation is fatal when young folks are in love. Sometimes the parents can engineer matters so that the young folk see so much of each other that they become weary, or at least conscious that the other is not the perfect being he or she thought he was. That is one way to discourage a courtship. An object lesson might help. A trial marriage was Judge Ben Lindsay's suggestion, but that is pretty drastic. If an affair can be broken off before a marriage is consummated it is better, it seems to me.

And I might say here that I do not believe at all in the unforgiving, cut-you-off-with-a-shilling type of parent. I believe our children should choose their own mates; that if there is something definitely wrong we should point it out to them, but if they insist upon going ahead regardless of our counsel, we should make the best of it.

In a case submitted to me the girl and boy are deeply in love and the girl's mother tells me the boy is well liked and very charming, but that one of his parents is mentally unbalanced and she fears it may be inheritable, and therefore is much worried over the possibility of her daughter marrying him.

Of course the only thing to do under those circumstances is to ascertain whether or not the parent's condition is an inherited one or caused by individual physical or mental conditions that cannot be passed on to another generation. If they are the former, the girl and boy should be told of the probable outcome of their marriage, and if they are responsible people they will separate, even if though it means suffering to them. In the latter case they can safely wed.

HOROSCOPE

For Friday, October 29.

A DAY OF surprising activity, with developments of a sudden and far-reaching effect on the future fortunes, is read from a long chain of planetary configurations. These may affect the private as well as business lives, with many quite unpredictable influences. New matters may come to head with sudden force, and the romantic, social or domestic life may encounter adventures of a surprising or mysterious nature. With a modicum of precaution all should flourish, bringing excellent opportunities for success and happiness.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of sudden and surprising events that may have a rather revolutionary effect on the private as well as business lives. Changes, journeys, removals, strangers and new opportunities may come in swift succession, bringing progress, romance, adventure and prosperity of a surprising character.

A child born on this day may be original, inventive, romantic and adventurous, making contacts and friendships in life that may lift it to the heights of popularity and prestige. Romantic love may have a large part in this.

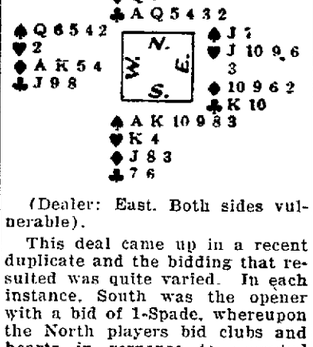
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

DROPPING THE BIDDING

It takes a lot of courage sometimes to drop the bidding when your partner has warned you about a misfit. Such action is pointed to quite strongly, however, if your partner rebids his own suit twice in response to calls of two other suits by you. This can be so even if your partner made the original bid, as it may have been based on nothing but one pretty good suit with a secondary honor or two on the side which will not fit your combinations.



(Dealer: East. Both sides vulnerable).

This deal came up in a recent duplicate and the bidding that resulted was quite varied. In each instance, South was the opener with a bid of 1-Spade, whereupon the North players bid clubs and hearts in response to repeated bids of spades by South.

Some ended up with North playing the hand at 4-Hearts and some at 5-Clubs, and none of these were successful in making their contracts.

The plus score on the North-South holdings was where the bidding started with 1-Spade by South, 2-Clubs by North, 2-Spades by South, 3-Hearts by North and 3-Spades by South. The North player, even though void in his partner's suit, realized that they held misfits and any further bidding on his part would probably get his side into trouble. He therefore decided to let 3-Spades stand, figuring that his partner's suit was no doubt fairly solid. Even though West held five spades against South, the contract was made with the loss of two diamonds, one club and one trump trick.

No matter how dry and hard paint dropped on clothing may be, if saturated with equal parts of ammonia and turpentine two or three times, then washed in soap suds, they will easily be removed.

Good Mirror Necessary To Make Up

By GLADYS GLAD

"America's Most Famous Beauty"

Whether you're an expert on mythology or not, most of you probably know the story of Narcissus. Narcissus, you'll probably remember, was the handsome youth who, in the days before mirrors were invented, saw his reflection in a woodland pool and fell in love with it. It wasn't until the Roman era, indeed, that mirrors came into use. And then they merely were poor reflectors made of polished steel.

Today, of course, mirrors are almost perfect, certainly are important beauty accessories, for they enable a woman to see herself exactly as others see her. When I see carelessly madeup faces, I almost wish that there was a beauty law requiring every woman to have at least one good, clear mirror in her home, and at least one spot with proper lighting. For some, I find, seem to be pretty much in the dark about the uses of makeup.

Women seem to forget that makeup is expected to appear as natural as nature's own handiwork. They use their cosmetics over-lavishly. And as a consequence, they appear garish and artificial, instead of natural and alluring.

Personally, I think that one of the main reasons why so many women's makeup lacks subtlety and artistry is because of the artificial lighting by which most of them apply their cosmetics. Very few damsels pay much attention to the lighting-arrangements when making up their faces. From a distance, they may appear attractive, for distance lends enchantment, it seems. But when viewed close up, they lose half their attractiveness.

Actresses, whose stock in trade is beauty, almost always apply their cosmetics under the most brilliant of lights. They realize that a dim light is extremely deceptive and flattering as it softens and tones down the crudest and most garish of makeups. And so they usually avoid dim lights.

Effects Differ.

Of course, in the daytime and in the evening, proper lighting effects differ. For daytime makeup, your mirror should be placed between two consecutive windows, if possible, so that the clear light of day falls upon your face. If this is impossible, use a small hand mirror in front of your window, to see if your makeup is perfectly applied.

At all events, no matter how you contrive it, be sure to take a good look at your face in the betraying and penetrating daylight before you venture out of doors.

When applying makeup for evening wear, you should be directly beneath the clear, revealing light of a strong electric bulb, so that the light reflects clearly upon your features. The best arrangement is to have the light directly over your mirror, unless you have a special makeup lamp.

And take care that the light falls evenly on both sides of your face, else you may tend to apply your cosmetics more generously to the shadowed part of your face than to the well-lighted portion.

Tomorrow's Problem.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

MRS. TICER scurried off to the kitchen after her assurance that dinner would be on the table in 20 minutes, and Dicky, flashing a meaningful glance at me, took his mother possessively by the arm.

"That will give Madge time to powder her nose," he said with a teasing glance at me. "Come along into the library, old Darling, and I'll spill you some choice bits about the children."

"When are they coming home?" his mother demanded belligerently. "That's the news I want to hear." But Dicky was already walking her toward the library, and his reply was lost in the sound of the closing door.

"Richard is always thoughtful," my father said as the door closed. "He can read your face even better than I can. Am I right in thinking you want to ask or tell me something by myself?"

"Oh, so badly," I said. "I'll just run up and get the dust off. Then may I come to your den?"

"Suppose I said, no!" he replied teasingly.

"Then I should come anyway," I told him audaciously as I turned to the stairs. But I felt anything but audacity when I knocked at the door of his sitting room a few minutes later. For with my homecoming there had come the realization of what the advent of the royal visitors might mean to my father. They might upset his privacy.

He gave a searching glance at me as he threw open the door in answer to my knock. Then he drew out a chair, put me into it, and stepped out of the room for a second, returning with a glass of water and a tinier glass of pungent restorative.

Ready for "Confession."

"Down with this before you talk," he said authoritatively, and when I had swallowed the rather unpleasant draught with a little moue at him, he stood smiling down watchfully at me before drawing a chair opposite me.

"Now you may start your confession," he said, and please remember I never have been a stern father. There is nothing you need fear to tell me."

"How did you know I was afraid?" I asked. "I only remembered to be just now."

He smiled tenderly at me.

"I haven't interpreted all your moods in vain during these blessed years since you were restored to me," he said, and something in his voice brought the old choke of pity for him back into my throat. How bitterly he had paid in years of loneliness and suffering for that treachery to my mother when he ran away with her best friend, leaving me, a child of four, as her only solace.

How bitterly my mother had paid in agony, and how implacable she had been in her determination to hide herself and me where her faithless husband could never find us! She had succeeded so well that when, on her deathbed, she had asked me to forgive him if I ever ran across him, she herself had no idea of his whereabouts.

Indulgent Father.

"You always have been the best and most indulgent of fathers," I told him. "That is the reason I am afraid I have abused that indulgence in what I have just done."

He smiled whimsically across at me.

"I really don't believe you're figuring in a poison plot with me as the victim," he said. "And I can't imagine anything else which would warrant such remorse as you appear to be suffering.

"But I'm afraid I have plotted unwittingly to poison your peace of mind and destroy your privacy," I said a bit melodramatically. "But indeed, I didn't intend to annoy you. I was thinking only of Mary, and how best to foil Philip Veritzen's plot against her."

His face lighted up with amusement, mingled with another emotion less pleasant which I knew instinctively was directed toward Philip Veritzen.

"So you offered the royal exiles sanctuary at the farm?" he inquired coolly.
